Majority Favor Arming

Opponents To Neutrality Bill Were Willing To Hurry A Final Vote

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—(AP)—Voting soon after hearing of the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny, the House gave overwhelming approval today to the arming of American merchant ships.

The roll call vote on final passage was announced as 259 to 138.

The legislation now goes to the Senate.

Guns and gun crews, under the legislation, would be given the ships for their protection against what President Roosevelt has called "modern pirates."

Ignoring opponents' warnings that it was another long step toward war, the house voted to repeal the neutrality act provision prohibiting the arming of merchantment engaged in commerce with any foreign nation.

Authority To President

The repealer also would authorize the president to arm such ships during the unlimited national emergency which he proclaimed last May 27 and, at the same time, would exempt them from the law which requires armed merchant vessels to be bonded in twice the amount of the value of both the vessels and their cargoes.

Galleries were packed and a larger than usual number of legislators were on hand for the historic vote and the oratory which preceded it.

U. S. Faces Conspiracy

A New England Republican, Representative Plumley of Vermont told the house in the last hours of debate that the Kearny incident made it evident that the United States faced a "world conspiracy of the basest, foulest criminals."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The vote of Missouri and Arkansas house members on legislation amending the neutrality act to permit arming of merchant ships:

Democrats for—Bell, Mo., Cochran, Mo., Cravens, Ark., Duncan, Mo., Gathings Ark., Mills, Ark., Nelson, Mo., Norrell, Ark., Romjue, Mo., Sullivan, Mo., Terry, Ark., Williams Mo., Zimmerman, Mo., Harris, Ark.

Democrats against — Shannon, Mo.

Republicans against— Bennett, Mo., Ploesser, Mo., Short, Mo.

Rep Plumley, (R-Vt.) told the house today that the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearney demonstrated that the United States was confronted with a "world conspiracy of the basest, foulest criminals" which made the administration's proposal to arm merchant ships "a trivial item."

Plumley made the statement as the house moved toward the end of debate on the ship arming legislation.

He said the Nazis were "saturated with a crazy determination to crush our civilization" and threatened to "stop all human progress."

A few minutes earlier, Rep. Cox

Strike Threats Eased Today At San Diego

Crisis Appears Though At Bendix, N. J.

By the Associated Press

Strike threats eased today at the huge San Diego bomber plant of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, but a crisis appeared to be at hand at the Bendix, N. J. factory of Air Associates, Inc., where 910 men walked out two weeks ago.

The executive board of the AFL machinists union announced last night that plans for a strike at Consolidated would be held in abeyance "a reasonable length of time" in order to permit settlement to be reached in Washington. The disagreement, the board contended, was between the government and the management.

W. D. Chudleigh, president of the machinists local, said the men began discussing the advisability of a strike after Major R. H. Fleet Consolidated president, had announced that he would not sign a proposed contract raising wages, unless the government paid part of the extra cost. Fleet said the wage increases would amount to $82,000,000 and would "break the company."

Considering Demands

High officials of the army and navy were keeping in close touch with the situation and considering Fleet's demands.

Sheriff William R. Brown at Bendix, N. J., telegraphed Governor Charles Edison yesterday that "mass violence appears inevitable" today at the air associates plant, which has orders for $5,000,000 worth of airplane parts. The sheriff said he had heard reports that striking CIO United Auto workers would try to force the plant to close.

It has remained in operation since the CIO men walked out demanding a form of union shop, an increase of minimum wage

Californians See New Colored Film

A very pretty and interesting colored motion picture, scenes at the 1941 Missouri State Fair, made at the request of the secretary, Ernest W. Baker, was shown for the first time in public to the Future Farmers of America Association of the California high school, at California, Mo., Thursday night.

The film is a 16 mm film, 2000 feet in length, and was filmed by Guy Peabody and Elgin Smith, of this city. Additional pictures have been added of prominent city and county officials and civic organizations in Sedalia.

Mr. Baker's idea is to show the film in all parts of Missouri, not only as an advertising feature for the Missouri State Fair, but it will also advertise Sedalia. It will be shown in every Missouri community.

The fair management has also established a monthly publication, which announces the fact the picture is available and will be shown upon request.

National Officer Dies In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Thomas A. Powe, former national commander-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, was found dead today on a rear driveway of a hospital where he had been a patient for five weeks.

Powe, 69, had been suffering from dizzy spells and his physician said he had apparently fallen from the fourth floor balcony of his private room after such an attack.

Four Burned In Hotel Fire Today

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17—(AP)—Fire swept through the Athens hotel in west end St. Louis early today, burning four persons, two critically, and routing a score from their beds.

Edward J. Burdick, 41, a clerk, and Miss Alice Benedict, 60, were most seriously burned. Mr. and Mrs. Nick Poulos also were injured.

Firemen carried five persons down ladders from second-story windows.

Deputy fire chief Robert Finnegan said the fire apparently began after a hot water heater exploded in the basement.

Japanese Head Admirer Of Nazi Methods

Was An Attache In Berlin In The Year 1919

TOKYO, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Lieut. Gen Eiki Tojo became premier-designate of Japan today, picked to take up the reins of government dropped by Prince Fumimaro Konoye yesterday before a growing crisis in the empire's relations with Soviet Russia and the United States.

A soldier and the son of a soldier, the 56-year-old general was war minister in the Konoye cabinet.

He has been an open admirer of German military methods since service in Berlin as an attache in 1919 and declared as long ago as 1937 that "Japan must be prepared to fight China and Russia simultaneously."

Emperor Hirohito entrusted General Tojo with the task of forming a new government upon the recommendation of Japan's elder statesmen to Marquis Koichi Kido, lord keeper of the privy seal. They made their decision at a 2¾-hour conference.

Called To Palace

Soon after Tojo was summoned, Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, who was minister of the navy under Konoye, was called to the palace.

Admit Motive Of Robbery

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Two 'teen-aged girls and a boy—all charged with slaying Grainger G. Browning, 40 in Maryland—faced an official contention today that the motive was theft of an automobile rather than defense of one of the girls.

County Attorney Albert Knudsen said Herbert H. Cox, 16, at first asserted he shot Browning to protect Ida May Price, 15, from the man's advances, but that the youth later admitted that he fired so he could "take his (Browning's) car and go no with the girls."

Miss Price and Leona Ellen Cunningham, 14, the third member of the trio that set out on a runaway trip from their Alexandria, Va., tourist camp home Sunday—Cox in search of work here—also have changed their stories to agree with Cox's, Knudsen said. Browning, whose home was in Mount Olive, N. C., but who had been working in Alexandria, had offered the youngsters a ride.

School Girl Killed By Train

IRONTON, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Geneva Sellers, 16 year old Ironton high school girl, was instantly killed at 1 p. m. today when her automobile was struck at a grade crossing by a Missouri Pacific red ball freight train. She had taken a friend to a shoe factory and was returning to the home of her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Sells, when the accident occurred. An inquest was ordered.

Charles Luther, 702 South Marshall avenue, who has been receiving medical treatment was dismissed from the hospital today.

U. S. Destroyer Is Torpedoed; No Casualties, Navy Announces

President Says Torpedoing Was In American Defense Zone

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 17—(AP)—President Roosevelt asserted today that the torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearny southwest of Iceland was clearly in the American defense zone.

The chief executive declined, however, to discuss the incident in detail, telling a press conference he would leave that to the navy department in Washington.

Three minutes after reaching his home here this morning, Secretary Knox advised him by phone of the attack on the Kearny. He appeared surprised that the press had learned of the torpedoing so soon.

But there was little evidence of alarm in his bearing over the fact that an American warship had been hit for the first time since the war in Europe began.

Mr. Roosevelt said, in response to questions, that he had no information about casualties or possible retaliation by the Kearny.

Navy Orders Apply

To an inquiry wnether the same instructions, to hunt down the marauder, had been given as in the case of the destroyer Greer, the chief executive merely replied that regular navy orders applied. Unsuccessful torpedo attacks were made on the Greer last month in the same general vicinity as the Kearny attack today.

Cautiously rebuffing all efforts of reporters to draw him out on the Kearny torpedoing by referring them back to the navy department, Mr. Roosevelt would not even go so far as to say whether he thought another act of piracy on the high seas had been committed.

Should Be Informed

And when a newspaperman remarked that superficially it was amazing that a destroyer could have been hit by a torpedo without being sunk — a destroyer is extremely light armored — the president suggested that his questioner ought to join the navy and get some information.

Whether it was to be implied that some new anti-submarine protection has been designed for destroyers was not readily apparent.

The chief executive volunteered word that he had virtually no work to do here over the week end and would be just sitting around in case anything developed. But he did not say whether he expected something to develop that would require his precipitous return to Washington.

Late War News of the World Assembled By The A. P.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Moscow radio was heard to say tonight that Soviet troops are defending the approaches to Moscow "with tenacity" and that "the advance has been somewhat slowed down."

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Moscow radio said in a broadcast here today that the German attack in the direction of Orel, 200 miles south of the Soviet capital, had slackened.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—A reliable source said tonight that it appeared the principals of the Russian government were withdrawing toward Kazan, 450 miles to the east, under a plan to reorganize war operations from bases in the 100,000 square-mile area between the lower Ural mountains and the Volga.

The lack of precise information contributed to the general opinion that the Germans were closing in on Moscow.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Marine circles reported today that all American ships headed for Oriental waters were ordered by the Navy to return to Honolulu, most strongly fortified port in the world.

There was no indicaion of how many ships were affected.

Marine men said ships on their way to Philippine water were the ones primarily affected. No ships have gone to Japan in recent months and few have gone to China.

Ships on the Australian run, which ply south and east of Oriental waters, were understood to be free from the order.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Authoritative quarters indicated today that all American merchant ships had been ordered out of Japanese and Chinese waters because of what the Navy called "the situation in the Pacific."

Ships in the rest of the Pacific would not be affected, it was indicated.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The Navy Department announced today that "a very few American merchant ships have been ordered into port for instructions regarding their voyages."

SHANGHAI, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Foreign military and naval observers here expressed the opinion today that there is now an increased likelihood of a Japanese attack on the Soviet Union's big far eastern port of Vladivostok.

With the new government in Tokyo and an apparent increase of influence of the Japanese continental army, these observers said, Japan may now attack Vladivostok from the north and west by land, despite the lateness of the season.

Connelly Wants To Retaliate

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex), chairman of the foreign relations committee, said today "we shall retaliate" for the torpedo attack on the U. S. destroyer Kearny.

"When our naval vessels are attacked by murderous and cowardly submarines, we shall retaliate by singing every surface raider or submarine that invades our defensive waters or threatens any of our naval vessels.

"This incident is but another revelation of the contempt of Hitler for all law—human, international and divine."

Senator Connally was here for the dedication of Sheppard Field, the nation's newest and largest aviation technical training center.

Titanic Battle For City Of Moscow Continues To Rage

By the Assocoated Press

On the Russo-German war front the titanic battle for Moscow raged into its 16th day with undiminished fury.

Soviet dispatches reported that stubbornly fighting Red army troops had broken two German spearheads thrust into the key sectors of Vyazma, 125 west of Moscow, and Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of the Russian capital.

While conceding that the danger was still extreme, the Russians nevertheless declared that the German onslaught on the approaches of Moscow had been slowed as Soviet defense armies of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko massed for a last ditch stand.

Berlin reports said that Nazi troops slashing at Moscow's outer defenses—only 60 miles away at some points—had captured an important nearby industrial section and a seized a power station which supplied the Moscow industrial region.

Authoritative quarters in London said the British military mission in Moscow was "on the move." Members of the Soviet government were reported moving to Kazan, 450 miles east of Moscow. U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and his embassy staff have already departed.

A midday Red army bulletin reported no new gains for the Nazi invaders, noting merely that the 61-day old struggle before Moscow was particularly fierce, with vast destruction of men and machines on both sides.

Adolf Hitler's high command reported that Nazi warplanes in attacks on Soviet troop ships fleeing Odessa, Russian Black Sea port, had sunk or damaged 14 ships and that the pursuit of "the beaten foe" was continuing between the Sea of Azov and the Donets river.

The Ship On Patrol Duty Near Iceland Is One Of The Newest

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP)—The navy announced that the destroyer Kearny was torpedoed this morning while on patrol duty about 350 miles south and west of Iceland.

The navy said no casualties were indicated in the dispatches received by the department and despite the damage the ship was able to proceed under her own power.

Lieutenant Commander A. L. Danis was the commander.

The Kearny, completed only last year, is one of the navy's newest destroyers.

Armed with the standard 5-inch gun battery carried by ships of her class, the Kearny is 341 feet long, has a 35-foot beam and replaecment of 1,630 tons.

No other details were available, the navy said.

The position given for the torpedo attack was the same general area where the destroyer Greer was attacked unsuccessfully by a submarine more than a month ago.

It was the first torpedoing since President Roosevelt's speech of September 11 which gave the fleet its shot-on-sight orders and barred all "defensive waters" of the United States to axis warcraft.

Order Effective September 16

Although the orders were issued on September 11, Secretary of Navy Knox subsequently revealed that they did not go into effect until 12:01 a. m. on September 16. At that zero hour, the Atlantic fleet extended its protection to all friendly shipping in the designated area, with explicit instructions "to capture or destroy by every means at their disposal axis - controlled submarines or surface raiders encountered in these waters."

The axis made no formal reply to Mr. Roosevelt's "defensive waters" proclamation, but semi-official reaction in both Berlin and Rome left no doubts that the axis would refuse to recognize the policy and that the American navy would be courting trouble if it sought to enforce it.

Nazi's Challenged

More concretely, the Germans openly claimed that in the week following the President's address their U-boats had sent 28 merchant ships to the bottom in "Icelandic waters." Since Mr. Roosevelt had ordered the navy specifically to keep the sea lanes to the

Searching For Missing Plane

CARLSBAD, N. M., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Into the crags of Point of the Mountains Sheriff Howell Gage and a posse of 25 men pushed today in search of an observation plane and three army fliers missing since Monday from Biggs Field, Fort Bliss, Tex.

The searchers started last night soon after Gage and Pilot Malcolm Medera of Jal returned from sighting what appeared to be wreckage of the plant on a rocky cannon rim, 60 miles southwest of here on the New Mexico-Texas border. It was a remote part of Gage's own ranch.

There was no indication in the deeping shadows as to the fate of the three fliers, Lieutenants Willis Hunt of Blytheville, Ark., and C. S. Kaiser of Louisville, and Sergeant Richard Latick of Denver.

The Canyon-gashed terrain is among the wildest of this section. Even horses must be left behind for the last four miles of the trek, the sheriff said, with searchers sometimes being forced to crawl.

U. S. Destroyer Is Torpedoed; No Casualties, Navy Announces

Greer Notified

U. S. base in Iceland free of hostile warcraft, this Nazi claim was looked on at the time as a possible direct challenge to the new American policy.

The Kearny has but two smoke stacks and thus contrasted with the 50 World War type, four-stock vessels transferred last year to Great Britain. Navy officers said its silhouette thus was far different from these, although resembling some of Britain's new two stockers.

Carried Large Crew

Officials estimated the Kearny carried a crew numbering between 125 and 150 officers and men.

News of the torpedoing came as the house prepared to vote on repeal of the neutrality act's ban on arming United States merchant-men, with passage a foregone conclusion.

There was no indication in the navy's first report on the Kearny incident as to just how the torpedoing occurred or what if any combat or protective steps preceded it. The official American record in the Greer case, however, has finally been made clear. Only four days ago Chairman Walsh (D-Mass) of the senate naval committee made public a statement by Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, detailing the story of the encounter between the Greer and a German submarine.

This account showed the Greer was 175 miles southwest of Iceland at about 8:40 a. m. on September 4 when a British plane notified her that a submarine was submerged 10 miles ahead directly on the course the destroyer was following.

The Greer steamed ahead rapidly, zigzagging and at 9:20 picked up the propeller beat of the submerged U-boat and began trailing it, broadcasting the submarine's position.

Stark commented that such action was in accordance with the Greer's orders which he described as being "to give out information, but not attack."

Dropped Four Depth Charges

At 10:32 the plane dropped four depth charges which went wide and 20 minutes later withdrew from the hunt.

The Greer, which was carrying mail to Iceland, stayed on the U-boat's trail. Then at 12:40 p. m. the submarine suddenly changed course and itself began to close on the Greer.

Minutes later two torpedoes were fired from the sub. Both missed and the Greer then then counter - attacked, dropping 11 highly explosive depth charges into the sea, but officers and crew observed no signs indicating a hit.

The German account of the Greer incident said the destroyer started the attack.

Pedestrians Must Walk Carefully

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Joe Pedestrian, who is chased up telephone poles by automobiles in nightmares and cartoons, must become doubly alert in Ohio.

He must watch out not only for the motor vehicles, but for the police.

The spectacle of the jaywalker practicing broken field running in mid town, dodging street cars and side stepping motorcycles while the cop on the corner blocks out the autos, is no longer funny, safety officials say.

In Cleveland, where the traffic toll for 1941 totals 98, as compared with 87 in the corresponding period of last year, traffic policemen pass out boxes of candy to pedestrians who exercise exemplary caution.

In Columbus the city officials are getting tough. Forty-six persons have been killed in motor vehicle accidents this year, as against 40 in 1940. Thirty-two of th 46 were pedestrians.

Safety Director Roy B. Weed, ordered police to crack down on "reckless pedestrians." "If they won't save themselves," he declared today, "we will try to save them by making arrests where necessary."

Numerous persons already have have been fined for crossing down town streets against the red light or between intersections.

Defense Bonds' Own Corner

Q I am a machinist in an airplane factory. When war is over I may be laid off. How can I prepare for that time?

A. Make systematic and regular purchases of Defense Savings Bonds. They will give you a substantial reserve which you can fall back on in the period of readjustment after the emergency.

Q. What should be done by the recipient of a "chain letter" soliciting Defense Sav-Stamps?

A "Chain letter" schemes are a violation of the postal laws. Such letters should be ignored. Buy your Defense Savings Stamps as an individual effort, to help national defense and to save money for your own rainy day needs.

Note — To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

Women Talk On America First

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—(AP)—In a two-barreled attack on intervention in the war, wives of two isolationist senators last night called upon the nation's leaders "to think of America first."

Outside Municipal Auditorium, where Mrs. Robert P. Taft, the Ohio Republican's wife, and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, wife of the Missouri Democrat, addressed an America First rally, pickets carried on a post-waving campaign.

In one group were representatives of the St. Louis Youth Council, an interventionist organization. In another were members of the National Legion of the Mothers of America, an isolationist order.

"There is no disunity on defense," stated Mrs. Taft. "We have the spirit to defend America and we have the resources to make it possible, but we must not waste these resources in a welter of debt and infficiency and unrealistic dependence upon other nations for our defense."

Declaring there were a few "sickening and discouraging symptoms of Fascism in this county," Mrs. Clark asserted.

"x x x whether the people like what our President and his administration are doing or not x x x it is an almost universal regret that the methods used are devious, subversive and cringing, and that they should have no place in a vital working democracy."

Files Answer To Partition Suit

An answer to a petition in partition was filed in the circuit court today by John H. He denies further in the answer that Ruby Petty or Frank Feil have an interest in the land, and contends that it can be divided in kind, and that it should not be sold at public auction. Recommended Settlement

The national defense mediation board has recommended that the firm adopt settlement terms which include immediate return of all strikers to their old jobs. Leroy Hill, president of the company, has rejected the request, stating that the men would be put back to work as places for the opened.

A strike of CIO steel workers at the Great Lakes Steel corporation, Detroit, was termed by their own regional director, Orval J. Kincaid, "the irresponsible action of a handful of would be leaders." He urged "loyal" union members to return to their jobs, and said those who didn't show up by midnight tonight would be suspended by the union and face possible dismissal by the company.

Set Up Picket Lines

The men set up picket lines Wednesday night as evidence of their dissatistaction with recent wage negotiations. Kincaid said wage adjustments were the highest in the industry and called for average hourly scales between $1 and $1.50.

A tentative agreement for settlement of an 18-day strike at the Midland Steel Products company at Cleveland has been reached, Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey announced last night, but pending its ratification by union members details were withheld.

CIO employes there had struck for 20 per cent wage increases and reclassification of 342 employes The strike affected not only 1,400 Midland employes, but forced the layoff of 6,000 Studebaker workers at South Bend, Ind. and 8,000 Hudson employes at Detroit. Midland supplies a number of automobile factories with chassis frames.

Punish Non-Payers

Another Cleveland strike involved CIO employes at the Lakeside Steel Improvement company, an organization which hardens and tempers gun mounts, aircraft parts and similar military equipment. The company said the union demanded the dismissal of any man who failed to pay his dues.

AFL metal trades workers who have been on strike went back to work last night at the Ingalls ship yards at Pascagoula, Miss., where production had been tied up since Monday. They agreed to return to their jobs while the defense mediation board attempted to settle their dispute with the company. The chief issue was said to be union security.

Majority Favor Arming

(D-Ga) declared that adoption of the resolution to repeal the neutrality act's ban on arming of merchantmen, while not a declaration of war, would be "an act of a state of war."

"With its adoption we become an army of 130,000,000 men and women," he said. "Every one of us pledged to the destruction of Hitler who has his iron heel on all of Europe."

Cox also said that with adoption of the repealer "we come to a deadline for all criticism of the foreign policy of the administration."

Opponents Concede Defeat

Opponents of the repealer frankly conceded defeat and sought to expedite a final vote by refraining from sponsoring time consuming amendments.

Republicans said they would make the opposition's last bid on a motion to send the resolution back to the foreign affairs committee with instructions that the whole question of neutrality act revision be considered at length in all its ramifications.

Democratic leaders gleefully agreed to that test, for they considered it the last barrier to a quick final vote—perhaps by mid afternoon—on the single question of repealing the present neutrality act prohibition against putting guns on cargo vessels.

Speaker Rayburn predicted that the measure would be approved by a majority of from 100 to 150 votes and sent on to the senate—where a more protracted debate was forecast. Republicans were inclined to agree with Rayburn's forecast

Protested "Hitler Speed"

Rep. Fish (R-NY) an outspoken critic of President Roosevelt's foreign policies, and other minority party members protested against what they termed the "Hitler" speed and procedure with which the Democrats sought to send the nesday and brought it before the house

(The legislation was introduced last week, the foreign affairs committee held hearings Monday and Tuesday, approved the bill Wednesday an dbrought it before the house yesterday)

Representative Luther A. Johnson (D-Tex), ranking Democratic committeeman, expressed the opinion that last minute world developments would tend to increase the vote for the legislation.

"The change in the Japanese cabinet and the critical Russian situation won't hurt us and it probably will make a lot of votes for us," he said. "It will make the members feel that we ought to tighten up a bit."

Debate Into Night

The legislation went to the house before noon yesterday and the debate ran along into the night.

As dusk fell, the members drifted out of the chamber and only a score or two were listening when Rep. Cluett (R-NY) took the floor and sharply rebuked his own party.

"Just as sure as the night follows day," he said. "The Republican party will regret the part it has played, and is now playing with a national defense they, themselves, voted to the tune of untold billions.

"Fortunately the administration has been clearheaded enough and far sighted enough to sense the peril which step by step, but with ever-increasing danger, has been approaching this nation."

Shift Of Sentiment

Members regarded as indicative of a shift of sentiment toward the administration's foreign policy a speech of Representative Marcantonio (AL-NY) who has opposed all defense and British aid measures except last week's $5,985,000,000 lease-lend appropriation.

"I now favor all the steps being advocated for the defense of this country," he shouted, and went so far as to openly advocate the dispatch of an American expeditionary force to "open a western front."

Marcantonio opened his remarks with the explanation that his previous opposition to the defense program arose from his belief that the European conflict was "an imperialist war" until Russia was invaded by Germany.

"I honestly believe that what is essential is for the United States to do everything possible to bring about the opening of a western front to prevent a Hitler triumph in Russia," he said.

Thirty-Nine Persons Sentenced Today

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Thirty-nine persons were sentenced today in courts of the occupied and unoccupied zones as the government pressed its campaign against political enemies of the Petain regime.

In a mass trial at Toulouse involving 43 persons charged with illegal political activity, a military court handed down 25 convictions ranging from 15 years at hard labor to two years in prison. All the accused, including those acquitted, were described as foreigners.

New Attack On The Mud

PARSONS, Kas., Oct. 17—(AP)—Capt K. M. Pattee, construction quartermaster on the Parsons ordnance plant, announced a new plan of attack today on mud which has virtually blocked construction work.

Portable wooden roads will be laid to permit trucks to reach construction points. Leonard C. Childs resident engineer, referred to the plank roads which can be moved from place to place as "land pontoons."

Japanese Head Admirer Of Nazi Methods

The general and the admiral left the palace together.

The premier-designate began conferences with prospective ministers in the hope of completing a tentative line-up for presentation to the throne after the emperor returns from ceremonies at the Vasukuni Shrine in honor of the war dead Saturday.

"I have received the imperial command to form a new cabinet and I am overwhelmed with the feeling of awe," the general said. "I retired from the presence of the throne respectfully asking a period of grace."

Assured of Support

Domei said the premier-designate had been assured of support by General Gen Sugiyama, chief of staff of the imperial army, and General Otozo Yamada, commander in chief of the home forces.

Selection of other members of the cabinet to serve under Tojo was expected to be delayed until after the emperor attends ceremonies at the Yasukuni Shrine Saturday in honor of the empire's war dead.

Generals and admirals probably will predominate in its make-up and may monopolize the portfollios, Japanese said.

Former Minister There

Amid these developments — coming less than two months after Prince Konoye first sought through secret negotiations in Washington to ease strained relations between the United States and Japan—it was reported that the commander in chief of empire legions in China had arrived in southern Japan on his way to Tokyo for a conference.

He is General Shunroku Hata, a former war minister.

Newspapers warned the people of the extreme gravity of the times and repeated charges that the United States must be held responsible for any deterioration of Japanese-American relations.

The disagreement over national policy which felled the Konoye government was regarded as most likely to have been caused by differences between Tokyo and Washington.

Understanding Failed

"We appreciate what the Konoye cabinet has done in attempts to settle many things with the United States," said the newspaper Yomiuri. "However, domestically speaking, the big undertakings of the cabinet failed to materialize."

The dispatch of Konoye's message to President Roosevelt in August proved Japan's sincerity in attempting to settle the problems of the Pacific, Domei said.

It carried comments that the Konoye cabinet did all within its power to bring peace to the world generally while carrying out Japan's basic policy of settling the war in China and constructing the East Asia sphere. It cited mutual freezing of assets by Japan and the United States as a hazard in international relations.

Difficult Time

"A fundamental disagreement between Japan and the United States" was reported by Nichi Nichi and it said "Japan is facing a rise or fall and a difficult time never paralleled in history."

Miyako declared Japan must be determined to cope with any emergency. If the worst happens, it said, the United States will be responsible.

Witness Will Not Testify To Grand Jury

Court Cautions Jury Not To Be Discouraged

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17—(AP)—Cole county grand jurors, checked at one turn by a witness who wouldn't talk, returned to the trail of a $5,000 slush fund today in their search for legislative corruption.

John A. Bourg, a St. Louis fire-union official who refused to answer the jury's pointed questions about the fund, remained under subpeoena as the body cancelled a weekend recess to press its inquiry.

Bourg declined to answer a set of questions attempting to link the fund with legislators. He refused on the constitutional ground that his answers might incriminate him.

Upheld Silence

Judge Sam Blair upheld Bourg's silence with the comment:

"I cannot berate this witness if he wants to invoke his constitutional rights."

Then he cautioned the jury not to be discouraged by its first rebuff, recalled that investigations sometimes break at their darkest moment, and reiterated his charge to "look everyplace and indict every guilty person."

Bourg's silence climaxed a day apparently devoted to a check of published reports a firemen's organization made up a $5,000 fund to be used in behalf of a firemen's pension bill introduced in the 61st general assembly. The bill was defeated in the house.

Some of the Questions

Here are some of the questions the witness wouldn't answer:

"Did local 73 of the International Association of Fire Fighter's contribute $5,000 to the Missouri Association of Fire Fighters for a legislative fund?"

"Did you bring any of this fund to Jefferson City?"

"Did you pay any of it to any member of the Missouri General Assembly in the year 1941?"

When Bourg refused to answer the grand jury foreman, J. W. Hobbs' had him brought before Judge Blair to determine if he could be forced to reply.

Do Its Best

"The important thing is not so much that someone be indicted—although the guilty should be indicted," Judge Blair remarked after he ruled on Bourg's rights. "The Grand Jury should continue to inquire so that no reasonable person can say it has not done its best.

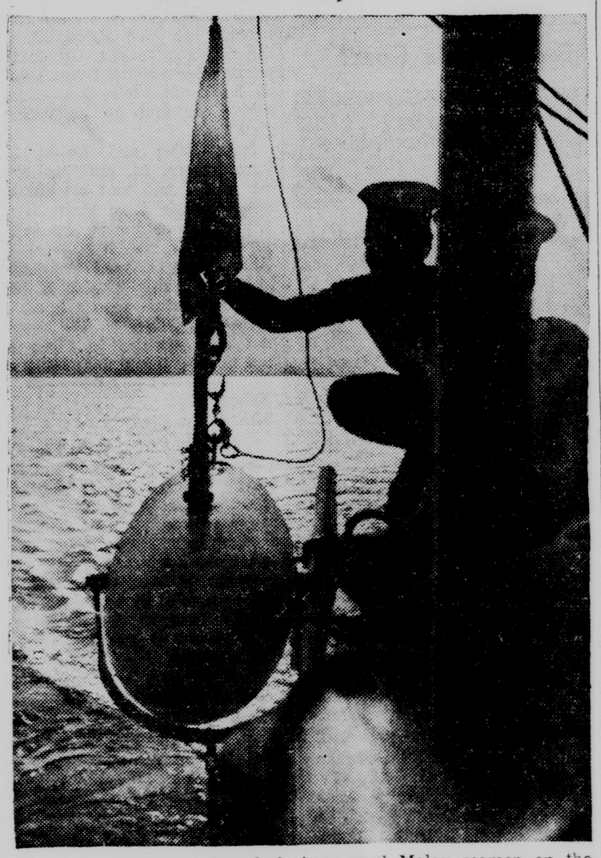

"It is important that when you've done and finished, the confidence of the people in this particular institution shall not be shaken, particularly when confidence in other institutions has been shaken."

The Grand Jury had intended to recess today but after the Bourg incident prosecutor Carl F. Wymore announced the jurors would return for a session this morning. He said both Bourg and Charles H. Gray, president of the Missouri Association of Fire Fighters, would be recalled to continue the examinations begun yesterday.

The jury met only briefly this morning, however, and adjourned for the week-end without calling any witnesses. Wymore said the firemen's pension bill study would be resumed Tuesday.

Greeks Suffer From Hunger

ALEPPO, Syria, Oct. 17—(AP)—The people of the Italian island of Rhodes are suffering from hunger as a result of the British naval and air blockade in the eastern Mediterranean, a traveler who just arrived in Syria from the Dodecanese islands declared today.

Many, he said, were so short of food "they would sell their souls for a tin of bully beef."

Greek residents of the island who lost Italian citizenship at the start of the war were said to be suffering most Their food is rationed strictly while the Italian residents purchase freely from the meager stocks available, the traveler said.

German dive bombers which were stationed on the island for a time now are operating in Russia, he said.

Another traveler who arrived from Greece said there were fears of famine there this winter.

He described the morale of the Italian army in Greece as low and added: "I say many Italian deserters wearing civilian clothes and living in mountain villages."

Greeks who mistook him for an Italian shouted and spat at him in the street, he said.

Can't Eat Cake And Have It Too

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 17—(AP)—Charles Lloyd Weatherby, whom a jurist said "seeks to eat his cake and have it, too." has failed to collect $25,000 from his estranged wife on the ground she refused to support him in accordance with an alleged premarriage pact.

A state supreme court justice, dismissing the Celoron resident's suit yesterday, also rejected an application for annulment of his 1938 marriage and vacated an attachment he obtained on an automobile belonging to his wife, Elizabeth Mary Weatherby, now of Orlando, Fla.

"In the manner of many males," Diamond observed of Weatherby in his official opinion, "he seeks to eat his cake and have it, too. In this respect, it may perhaps be said that this plaintiff is following tradition. But the court is unable to say with even approximate certainty that plaintiff is following legal precedent."

Miss Helen Fricke, who attends the Teachers' college in Warrensburg arrived home today for a week end visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Fricke, 907 West Seventh street.

Stock Prices On A Rebound

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Despite further adverse news, including a torpedo attack on a U. S. destroyer, stock and commodities markets cancelled much of yesterday's losses on a broad rebound in prices.

Shares played a comparatively minor role in the recovery but this seemed logical since their Thursday decline had been less severe than in speculative staples. An early upturn gave way to irregularity but prices hardened again in the later proceedings and at the finish many industrial leaders were ahead fractions to a point or so. Dealings were around 750,000 shares.

Joplin Taxicab Killer In Crash

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Joplin's third traffic fatality this month and the ninth of the year occurred this morning when Ernest L. Cryder, a taxicab driver, lost his life as his car crashed into a moving Frisco freight train.

Cryder, 36, was crushed inside his battered car and died soon after he was extricated with the use of crowbars.

Herb Barker Goes Out On A Limb Again

Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Rice Are Among His Picks

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—(reserving the shot in the arm for Saturday night):

Northwestern - Michigan: The game of the week between two unbeaten, untied western conference outfits. Northwestern has a bushel of backs, all good, but the Wildcat line may, or may not, be something else again. We'll take Northwestern but there are safer investments.

Navy-Cornell: And here's another one where somebody's perfect record will become fond memory. But the Tars seem to have so much scoring punch and so much material, this vote for Navy is almost automatic.

Texas Christian-Texas A. & M. and still another one of the same class. Christian, thanks to Kyle Gillespie, has been winning the close games. A. & M. has run up nearly 150 points in three games and hasn't been tested. This one ought to tell the story. The Aggies.

Columbia-Georgia: None tougher to figure. Columbia's smart and boasts a tricky, effective offense but the Lions lack Georgia's manpower. This uncertain ballot goes to Georgia.

Villanova-Baylor: The Bears come north with one of the great backs of the year in Jack Wilson. Villanova may be one of the east's best but hasn't proved it yet. The coil coin spins and says Baylor in this test of unbeaten, untied teams.

Vanderbilt-Georgia Tech: Might be scoring fireworks here. Vanderbilt to remain unbeaten.

Minnesota-Pitt: Where's the adding machine? Minnesota.

Texas-Arkansas: No reason to get off that Texas bandwagon.

Santa Clara-Michigan State: A long trip for Michigan State and a probable beating. Santa Clara.

Rice-Louisiana State: The Tigers are on the upgrade after a bad start but there's no choice here but Rice, conqueror of Tulane.

Duke-Colgate: Looks safe for Duke.

Ohio State-Purdue: Could be trouble for the Buckeyes. Still, Ohio State.

Nebraska-Indiana: That Husker defense looks tough and Indiana's unlucky. Nebraska.

Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech: Should be only a workout for Notre Dame.

Penn - Princeton: The Tigers haven't shown anything to rate them a chance against powerful Penn which is the heavy choice.

Temple-Penn State: Probably close but this vote goes to Andy Tomasic and Temple.

Yale-Army: These Yales can score when they start tossing that apple. Army's better than a year ago but no ball of fire either. The nod goes to Yale

Harvard-Dartmouth: Jumping on the Dartmouth band wagon, possibly at precisely the wrong time.

Tennessee-Alabama: This used to be the game of games but it's just a meeting of beaten teams this year. Out of the hat, Alabama

Tulane-North Carolina: Maybe the Green Wave will start rolling again after the Rice upset. The Tarheels are tough but Tulane gets the nod.

Auburn-Southern Methodist: I like the Mustangs of SMU.

Wisconsin-Iowa: The Hawkeyes' defense looks good. Iowa.

Marquette - Kansas: Picking Marquette.

Iowa State-Missouri: Could be close. Missouri.

Kansas State-Oklahoma: A ballot for Oklahoma.

Oregon-California: 54-40 or fight Oregon.

Washington-UCLA: The Huskies are on the track again. So, Washington.

Southern California - Washington State: The Trojans have to stop Bill Sewell to snare this one. This vote, extremely doubtful, goes to Washington State.

Stanford-San Francisco: Taking Stanford.

Fordham-West Virginia: The Mountaineers have been big disappointments. Fordham.

Holy Cross-Mississippi: The Rebels are not as tough as expected. Still Mississippi.

New York University-Syracuse: Syracuse but the Orange had better translate yardage into points for a change.

Maryland-Florida: The 'Gators should win one. Florida.

North Carolina State-Wake Forest: The edge belongs to Wake Forest.

Virginia Military-Virginia: Brilliant backfields in this one but Virginia's defense seems better. Virginia.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Georgetown over Geo. Washington; Duquenes over St. Vincent (might be close); Boston College over Manhattan; Brown over Tufts; Bucknell over Boston University; Rutgers over Fort Monmouth; Kentucky over Xavier Furman over Citadel; Virginia Tech over Davidson; William and Mary over Hampden Sydney; Illinois over Drake; Detroit over Oklahoma A. and M.; Tulsa over St. Louis; Creighton over Washington university; Montana over Gonzaga; Denver over Wyoming; Utah over Brigham Young; Colorado over Colorado State; Idaho over Utah State, Washington and Lee over Richmond.

Big Six Grid Market Quotes

By Charles Chamberlain

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 17—(AP)—The grid market quotes Marquette over Kansas by 20 points, Missouri over Iowa State by 14, Nebraska over Indiana by 8 and Oklahoma over K-State by 20. . . . Wanta buy?

Iowa State is giving its old grid gear to service teams. . . . Sophomore End Art Santow of Missouri skips rope as part of his homework . . . Improves his footwork. . . . Andy Tomasic, Temple's scat halfback who harrassed Kansas, is one of the leading eastern scorers with 36 points in three games. . . The Colorado Buffs are in a huff because a sports writer in this neighborhood described Fullback Ray Jenkins as a "two-year disappointment."

Topeka papers rumor that Elmer Holm, Washburn coach, has indicated he would like to retire after this year. . . He's been in harness there 13 years as head and line coach. . . .

Mangle Dept. — Texas' terrific trounce of Oklahoma is described by one writer: "Bible's Steers were like a great surgeon performing an operation. They didn't mangle the patient, but made their incisions neatly and rapidly and in spots the Sooners themselves never suspected the scalpel would ever reach." . . . Quick, Henry—the ether

That was a 5-4-2 defense K-State used to stop Missouri, the four men so close that it was virtually a nine-man line. . . . The biggest score in the Missouri-Iowa State rivalry which rooted back in 1896 was a 29 to 0 verdict for the Cyclones in 1912. . . . Missouri is on four homecoming programs—starting with Iowa State at Ames tomorrow, Michigan State at East Lansing, Kansas at Lawrence, and of, course, the biggest, Oklahoma at Columbia.

Leon Waughtal the guy who cranks the camera for Missouri's motion pictures, says his hardest task is spotting the ball after that T blossoms out. . . . And he thinks Red Wade's dazzling 65-yard run last week was the best he has seen in 17 years of following the sport.

One of the greatest passing duels in the country should come out of the Kansas-Marquette game tomorrow with two Kansas boys in the feature role. . . . Jim Richardson, Marquette left half who calls Independance, Kas., his home has connected 16 times out of 22 in two games for a 200-yard gain. Ralph Miller, Kansas quarterback, has hit the target 26 out of 48 for 254 yards. . . Tom Stidham, Marquette's new coach, lost his first game to Kansas in his first year at Oklahoma. . . . That was in 1937, the Sooners led 3-0 with 15 seconds left and Kansas tinkled out a pass to win 6-3. . . . From 1937 to 1940, Stidham's Sooners won 15 games, lost four and tied one in the Big Six.

Frank Barnhart, K-State's fine end, is a son of a lieutenant colonel in the cavalry at Fort Riley and wants to jump into an army officer's uniform after graduation . . . The Wildcats never have been beaten by a Big Six two-mile team in dual competition at home since the sport started in 1930. Fort Riley soldiers will see the Oklahoma-Kansas State game tomorrow at a special rate of four bits — Wayne Replogle, Jayhawk frosh coach, has a hobby of oil painting holds a commission as a Kentucky colonel.

All Prophet—No Loss

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(The Special News Service)—Arkansas U., which admits being in the Southwest Conference doghouse, is aiming to outdo the other six by signing up 1,500 volunteer coaches — at rates from $1 for end coaches to $25, or what you, to be a coach of the "woiks." . . . And then, says Drum Beater Johnny Porter, "Watch our fur fly." . . Stan Benjamin, the Phillies' outfielder, is keeping in shape this fall by helping Coach Framingham (Mass) high, where he was grid captain in 1932. . . . Mayon Padlo, the Philly welterweight puncher, was given up for dead five years ago when a heater exploded and burned him.

Today's Guest Star

Carter (Scoop) Latimer, Greenville (S. C.) News: "What we thought to be a pumpkin on our Scooperoo ranch yesterday turned out to be the lost football which Booty Payne kicked in Boston and it rolled to South Carolina."

Take-A-Chance Dept.

Judging by last week's results, the best football pick this time would be to pick a seat in the last row and keep quiet. . . . But with utter abandon we'll take Villanova over Baylor for tonight's shot in the dark and Navy over Cornell, Nebraska over Indiana, Northwestern over Michigan, Columbia for a long shot over Georgia, Duke over Colgate, Texas Christian over the Aggies and Santa Clara over Michigan State for the Saturday toughies. . . No questions, please.

Give Him The Bird

Nile Kinnick, the last guy to beat the Gophers, was scouting Minnesota for Iowa Saturday. When he spotted Don Griffin, Illinois sophomore star, he remarked: "I know just how he feels. Going into your first conference game you can feel a flamingo fluttering in your stomach." . . . And someone reminded him that Griffin had to break in against Minnesota, and Nile corrected himself —"Make it two flamingoes." . . . Don Gutteridge, who couldn't get back his old job with the Cardinals last season, says he won't play minor league ball any more because there's no money in it.

The Old School Try

When the Galesburg (Ill) high school "pony" team scored a touchdown against Moline last Saturday, Fullback Don Williams tried a line plunge for the point and didn't make it. . . . But Moline was offside and he got another chance. . . That time Galesburg had a man in motion and was set back five yards. . . On the third effort Williams missed connections on a pass but Moline again was offside. . . . Finally Williams ran the end and failed to score. Moline won the game 14-6.

Professional Notes

Tony McKevlin, sports editor of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer has been promoted to the managing ed's chair and Sam McDonald, his former assistant, is taking over the sports spot. . . . John Cronley is the new sports ed of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times, succeeding Bus Ham.

Plenty Tickets For Husker-Tiger Tilt

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 16—(AP)—Virgil Spurling, executive secretary to the committee of intercollegiate athletics at the University of Missouri and the guy who sells the tickets, issued a warning to fans today not to delay too long in buying tickets for the Nebraska-Missouri football game, Oct. twenty-fifth.

"I want to spike any rumors that the stadium is sold out," Spurling said. "However, the tickets are going fast and we should have capacity crowd."

As an added precaution against a sell out, Spurling ordered the erection of 3,000 additional bleacher seats at the open end of Memorial Stadium.

Lincoln Gets First Real Test Saturday

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Tomorrow is the day Nebraska's football team will go to the proving ground, where, if you ask Vike Francis, fullback and wheelhorse of the backfield, the Huskers will get into the National swim.

Nebraska, minus 15 lettermen from the squad that won the Big Six championship last fall and went on to the Rose Bowl, has beaten Iowa State and Kansas of the Bix Six Conference this year but Husker fans still are asking "just how good are we?"

They expect Indiana, tomorrow's foe, to supply the answer, because the Hoosiers, although beaten three times in close games, have met much tougher competition than the Huskers.

Duck Hunters Slow To Start

Hunters And Birds Are Scarce Except In One Section

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—(AP)—It was the same old first-day-of-the-season story for Missouri's duck hunters — generally poor shooting.

But there was a cheerful variation this year—the prospects are good, better than usual, especially along the Mississippi river flyway.

Only in the Chariton county area did the shooting appear better than average for the season's opening. Conservation agents reported a large number of blue-winged teal and pin tails bagged there yesterday.

While most hunters looked hopefully but vainly at overcast skies, nimrods and conservation agents along the Mississippi reported "good" flights of mallard, teal, and widgeon. An agent in the bootheel section estimated 15,000 geese winged over during the day.

High water still covering sand bars and other usual landing spots for ducks along the main flyway resulted in most of the birds speeding on southward, however.

The shooting at Lake of the Ozarks, a favorite spot for central Missouri hunters, was poor. A conservation agent in the western lake area reported he heard only three shotgun reports all day.

Greyhound A World Champion Retires

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Greyhound, the world champion trotting horse, was in retirement as a nine-year-old today with 17 international records, 33 race victories and more than $60,000 in purses to his credit.

A private van took the big gray gelding from Sep Palin's Indianapolis stable, where he trained to the Red Gates farm, near St. Charles, Ill., of E. J. Baker, hotel man who had owned him from a yearling.

Palin's second trainer, James Wingfield, said Greyhound would be put to pasture and would race no more either with other horses or with time, over both of which he was master.

"He's done everything that there is for him to do, you see," the horseman said, citing Greyhound's virtual monopoly on records and his outclassing of other horses so greatly that there were no more races for him.

Greyhound brought the world Syracuse, N. Y., in August, 1940, when he won the New York State secretary of agriculture stake.

Greyhound brought the world mile trotting record to 1 minute, 55 seconds and won all but three of his races, losing only as a two-year-old.

He was born on the Lexington, Ky., farm of Henry H. Knight of Chicago, March 4, 1932, by Guy Abbey out of Elizabeth. His dam was a daughter of Peter the Great.

Start Drive For Wildlife Club Members

Fingerlings To Be Placed In Liberty Park Lake Today

A truck load of fingerlings were brought to Sedalia today from the Lewis and Clark hatcheries at Rushville, Mo., and placed in Liberty park lake for a permanent home

In two or three years, after the fingerlings are grown, the lake will be opened to women and children who like to fish, and will remain open exclusively for their use each year after that, as the fish multiply.

The plan is part of the work sponsored by the Pettis County Wildlife Conservation club, which met at the Chamber of Commerce offices Thursday night to open a large scale membership drive for the coming year. About 200 Pettis County sportsmen were members of the club during 1940, and E. F. Hausam, Jr., vice-president of the club, assisting President Frank Hugelman in opening the drive, asserted that "everybody that fishes and hunts should be a member of the county organization."

Want Large Membership

About 35 members attended last night's session, and each chose about 10 names of Pettis Countians. The members must bring 10 persons who are on their list to the next meeting of the club, which will be held Tuesday, October 28.

Missouri is one of the outstanding states in the nation in conservation activities, and has built a large number of rearing ponds for fish, 17 of which are in Pettis County; the conservation commision has recently placed 1,147 quail on county farms, and planted 5,000 trees on farms for the protection and shelter of quail through the winter season.

Prevents Destruction

Only through the work of county farmers and sportsmen can the proper care be taken of Missouri wildlife, club officials stated. The work of the club gives the hunter and fisherman his sport, but prevents the wholesale destruction of wildlife. In 1938, 34,450 fish were placed in streams and ponds in Pettis County by the conservation club; in 1939, 60,000, aand in 1940, 75,000. This includes the numbers placed in Liberty park lake in Sedalia during those years.

Work of the club includes the contribution of many pounds of lespedeza seed for planting in the county. In Missouri, 46,523 acres of land have been seeded in lespedeza by farmers for use of quail as feed during the winter. Among the Pettis County ponds and creeks which have been stocked with fish during the past year are Flat Creek, Springfork, Lake Creek, Basin Fork, Shaver Creek, Muddy Creek, Camp Branch and Heath Creek.

In addition to Hugelman and Hausem, officers of the club include Milton Abeles, secretary and Dr. C. H. Weaver, treasurer.

A drunken pig in Kentucky led officers to a still. They simply followed the pickled pig's feet.

Syracuse Cage Tourney Started

The Syracuse Invitational high school basketball tournament got underway Thursday night with four games being played, and Stover, Syracuse, Otterville and Barnett emerging victors.

In the opening game Smithton bowed out to Stover 35-19; in the second contest Otterville doubled the score over Versailles, 42 to 21; Fortunia lost the third game to Syracuse 27 to 16 while Clarksburg was able to tally but 15 points and lost to Barnett who chalked up 28.

The second rounds will be played tonight while the Semi-finals and finals will be run off at the Syracuse high school on Saturday.

Bardette Cubic of California, and T. L. Maloney of Warrensburg handled the officiating duties over the games.

• The Washington Merry-go-Round

• by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON— The vigorous questions raised by the British people regarding an expiditionary force to Europe have been echoed this week both openly and privately by high officials in Washington.

In some circles there has been a feeling that with summer gone and the Russian army pushed back and back, Churchill has lost his golden opportunity. Other officials, who realize the problem the British face, are not so critical.

However, gleaned from expert military quarters, here are the inescapable facts.

The Germans now have only thirty divisions in Western Europe. Counting about 15,000 men to a division (though the number varies), this means about 450,000 men. But of these, it is doubtful if Hitler's generalissimos could risk using more than ten divisions, or about 150,000 men, to oppose the British. The other troops would have to be scattered over France, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia to prevent uprisings. That is one advantage of attacking at this time—the belligerent spirit in the occupied areas.

Contrasted with this Nazi force, the British have an army of more than 2,200,000 men concentrated in the United Kingdom. In the Near East they have 1,500,000, with another half million in the Far East, India and Singapore. But of the 2,000,000 men in England, only about 750,000 are fully equipped with modern mechanized weapons.

This is a small and ineffective number compared with the total German army, but not small when compared with the German army now guarding Western Europe.

Britain Waits

Also to be considered is the fact that if Hitler could not invade England last year, the British would have a tough time making a landing in France, now super-fortified by the Nazis. On the other hand, the British would find thousands of Frenchmen ready to help them, together with Dutch, Norwegians, Spanish if they could land in those countries.

Therefore, in the minds of U. S. military experts, the explanation of British inactivity boils down to exactly this: For nearly two years the British have been training an army to defend their island, not to attack. Troops are still being trained in preventing invasion, not invading the enemy's area.

In addition, all the training of the British army for the past fifty years has been based upon the supposition that it could depend upon the mass army of France.

Recently, the British began to shift their tactics. Realizing that some day they would have to take the offensive, they began building up an attacking army. But their strategy called for the offensive not until 1943.

And when the golden opportunity came this past summer, the British just could not change their strategy fast enough.

Note:—Here are the latest confidential figures on German losses on the Russian front: a total of 72 divisions out of action because of men killed, captured or wounded. Of these, 28 divisions were Rumanian, Finnish, Slovak and Hungarian. In other words, 1,080,000 men lost; of which 420,000 were non-Germans. This does not include the tremendous losses of the past two weeks. Before the drive on Moscow began, Germany still had about 280 divisions, or approximately 4,200,000 men, both effective and supporting troops, spread along the 3,000-mile Russian front. After the drive is over, they can concentrate on Britain, North Africa, eventually on South America.

Capital Chaff

Everytime the Duke and Duchess of Windsor walked through the lobby of the Hotel Montreal recently they had the pleasure of walking on the Nazi swastika. It was woven into the carpet, yellow on a field of black . . . Princess Pulianna also occasionally walked over the hated symbol of Mr. Hitler's armies . . . It isn't advertised, but the Army now has a regular military air service across both the North and South Atlantic, operating on schedule, just as punctually as any commercial airway in the U. S. A. . . Good news for the troops eaten by chiggers in the Louisiana maneuvers: Denton Crowl of Toledo had just discovered a chemical which will make them scarce as American heavy bombers . . . We now have 17 U. S. military and naval attaches stationed in London, not counting several hundred a month who go and come to observe aerial warfare, etc . . . Jesse Jones is angling to get John Hertz, original king of the Yellow Taxis in Chicago, appointed to the Maritime Commission . . . Officially there is no censorship in Canada, but the Canadian exchange and finance bureau take a careful peek at any letters which they think might contain money—especially from American banks.

Mysterious Guns

During his private conference with congressional leaders preceding his special message on revision of the Neutrality Act, the President made a significant statement regarding guns.

He told the legislative chiefs the Navy now has enough guns to arm all U. S. merchant vessels that will require them.

That was all the President said about the weapons. The leaders asked no questions and he volunteered no information regarding the number of guns available, their type, where they are, or how they were obtained. His only other observation was to stress the importance of speedy legislative action because of the time required to arm a merchant ship.

"It may take as much as a month to bring some of these ships into drydock and mount guns," he explained.

None of the congressional leaders raised the point, but Roosevelt's assertion that the Navy now had all the necessary guns revealed a different situation from the one he had pictured about a month ago.

At the White House conference preceding his last fireside broadcast, in which he denounced Nazi attacks on U. S. ships, the President was asked by a congressional leader why measures were not taken to arm the vessels. His reply was: "We haven't got the guns."

Where and how the guns were obtained is his secret.

Note:—One of the six Senate votes cast against the Neutrality Act when it was passed in 1937 was by Senator Hiram Johnson. The Californian caustically denounced the measure as an abrogation of traditional U. S. rights on the sea and mocked the idea that it was an aid to peace. Yet despite this stand, Johnson, now a bitter isolationist Roosevelt-hater, will oppose the President's proposals for revision of the Neutrality Act.

Merry-Go-Round

Manfred Zapp, long-beaked chief of the Nazi news agency who was deported several months ago, is wanted by the National Press Club for an unpaid debt. On the Club's last posting of debtor accounts is this item, "Manfred Zapp, $16.10" . . . The American Association for Economic Freedom has reprinted an address made more than ten years ago by Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin of Cleveland on "A New Social Order" in which he advocated a union of the English-speaking countries to resist the totalitarian aggressors . . . Ace Washington newsman Dan Kidney, who coined the watchword "You've got to lick Hitler or lick his boots," says the theme song of foes of aid to Russia should be, "I can't give you anything but love, baby" . . . Heavyweight champ Joe Louis, soon to be drafted, is tackling what he describes as "the biggest fight of my career." He has sent a circular letter to every member of Congress asking them for help to raise a fund for a movement to improve the economic condition of Negroes.

Good Augury

May there not be an augury in the fact that Yugoslavia, which has achieved strong internal unity in the face of an external threat to that country, is a country of heterogeneous people, like the United States? Louis Adamic, author and active worker for the interests of the new American, has pointed out this fact, and cited it in support of the plain and simple idea that it is not blood and origins that unite a people, but a common interest, a common purpose, a common goal and ideal.

That also links the British, largely a homogeneous people of one blood, with the people of Yugoslavia, who are of many racial strains. What is forming against Nazi Germany, Italy and Japan, is a group of people linked by a powerful tie—"the people who won't be pushed around!"

The United States is the preachiest nation on earth. We've done more talking about international morality and made as little effort to further it as any country.—Dr. Walter Van Kirk, Federal Council of Churches.

Consider Other Factories Here

Quickly following up the excellent work done in securing a shoe factory for Sedalia, the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce has communicated with other prospective manufacturing plants in regard to the establishment of branches here.

A client interested in establishing a company to manufacture leather goods, which would employ both male and female workers, has contacted the C. of C. office. The building for the plant should have from 10,000 to 15,000 square feet of floor space available for rental.

The other plant, a branch factory, is for the manufacture of garments and would probably start with 50 sewing machine operators later increasing this number to 150. Officials of the company stated that they would like to lease a building with or without a purchase option. The company would be willing to construct a building under certain conditions.

Both companies prefer a city with Sedalia's central location, and of its population. The excellent labor situation and transportation facilities in Sedalia have proved greatly in its favor.

Cornhusking Contest On

GRAHAM, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—In a field dampened by early morning rain, 17 women started at 11:30 a. m. today in the fifth annual women's cornhusking championship sponsored by the Lyle Community club.

Seeking to retain her title, Mrs. Mary Wohlford of Oregon, Mo., had plenty of competition from within her own family. Among the competitors were three of her sisters—Mrs. Warren Pierson and Mrs. John V. Pelt, Skidmore, and Miss Edna Gray, Burlington Junction.

There were two out of state entries, Mrs. Grace Emman, Maloy, Ia., and Mrs. Raymond Kopf, Rulo, Neb.

The women husk for an hour, 20 minutes shorter than the standard in men's husking events. Otherwise their rules are the same, the winner being decided on the basis of the most corn husked after deductions are made for husks left in the loads and for gleanings—ears left in the field.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The annual livestock judging contest between state 4-H champions was held today as prelude to the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show.

Entered were teams from Iowa, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Missouri. The winners are to be announced tonight.

The contests were judged by W. J. Kennedy of St. Joseph, Mo., an official for his nineteenth consecutive year.

Tomorrow a score of college judging teams will take over as the American Royal gets under way with a downtown parade and the crowning of a queen at a coronation ball at night.

Will Hays Say Nay? Lupe Strips Anyway

In "Honolulu Lou," honky-tonky Lupe Velez loses her longies, revealing lingerie of cellophane styled as a hula skirt. Loopy Lupe has leaped clear of Hays horrification so far, but the lovely Latin may not get the Purity Seal this time.

McCormick Died Thursday In California

Son Of Reaper's Inventor Succumbs After Long Illness

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 17—(AP)—Harold Fowler McCormick, son of Cyrus Hall McCormick, inventor of the reaper, died Thursday of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 69 years old.

An illness caused him to be bedridden much of the time in recent years. He suffered from arthritis and recurring heart attacks and had to use a wheel chair and be assisted by a nurse.

At his bedside was Adah Wilson McCormick, 37, the nurse he married in 1938, and his son, Fowler McCormick, president of the International Harvester Company.

His Third Wife

Miss Wilson was McCormick's third wife. His first was Edith Rockefeller, daughter of John D. Rockefeller. This marriage united two of the nation's wealthiest families Mme. Ganna Walska, Polish singer, was McCormick's second wife, but she spent most of her time in Paris, apart from him, and they were divorced in 1931.

McCormick became interested in Mme. Walska in 1920 at Havana. She was appearing in "Thais" in an enterprise backed by her husband, Alexander Cochran of Yonkers, N. Y. Although the Havana audiences hissed her and critics ridiculed her voice, McCormick was convinced she had tallent and decided to take her to Chicago for an appearance in the civic opera, which he had endowed richly.

Debut Cancelled

Mme. Walska's Chicago rehearsals were too much for director Marinuzzi, however. He listened to her three times and cancelled her debut. Shortly after, strife arose in the Cochran-Walska home and when he refused her request for an elaborate home in Paris she sued for divorce. Six weeks after the decree was granted she married McCormick and he gave her the Paris residence. He was her fourth husband.

Four children were born to the McCormick-Rockefeller union, three are living. Mathilde, the youngest, married Max Oser, a Swiss riding master much older than she. Fowler married Mrs. Anna (Fifi) Stillman when she was 51 and he 31. Muriel married Maj. Elisha Dyer Hubbard.

Served In War

McCormick served an apprenticeship in his father's International Harvester Company, became vice-president in 1902 and president in 1918 but relinquished the presidency four years later when the company was reorganized and became chairman of the board of directors.

In the World War McCormick served as head of the Bureau of Coordination of Purchases for the AEF.

Private funeral services will be held here. Memorial services will be conducted later in Chicago.

News Notes From Around About Missouri

KENNETT, Mo., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Not all thieves are lazy . . . someone made off with the bolls from eight rows of Harry Ray's cotton field near Nesbit one recent night.

And while on the timely subject of cotton picking, Butler county reports such a bumper crop this year that all manner of transportation is being called into use. . . . H. W. Gummels drove into the Qulin Gin with his crop loaded in a two-wheeled cart hauled by a donkey, progenitor of—but physically inferior to—the mule more common in the cotton country.

If all fugitives went around having a series of automobile wrecks like those youths from the Algoa Band did in the Randolph county area last week, there might always be a legitimate excuse for the highway patrol to hunt them down despite its limited field of traffic safety work.

Society Item: The senior Sorosis Club of Chillicothe had its annual breakfast at noon, but the Junior club likes later hours . . . it opened with a 6:30 p. m. breakfast . . . seems the rules of the National organization provide the day's activities must open with a breakfast, and breakfast it is regardless of the hour.

Jack Utz, Buchanan county recorder, tells of another item that probably never made the society columns . . . a girl called from an outlying town to tell Utz her boy friend was on the way in for a marriage license but to advise him she had changed her mind.

You recall, no doubt, Diogones and his lantern . . . well, Glenn Setzer of Kinston, currently auditing county books for the State Auditor's office, is a lamp collector.

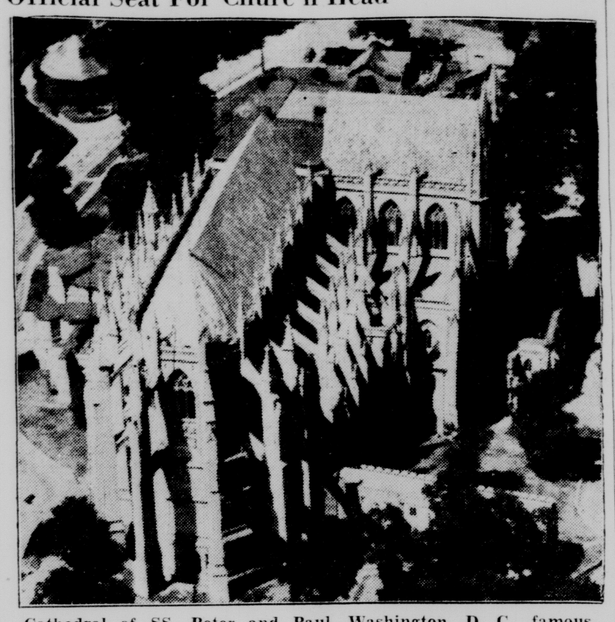

There seems to be an epidemic of police hecking on the part of four-footed creatures in Missouri . . . a cow turned up on Sedalia's main street about 3 a. m., finally was chased down by an officer of the law and then stood tethered to a parking meter while a night shift cop milked her for an enterprising Capital - Democrat photagrapher . . . In Cooper county Sheriff George B. Harlan and his deputy, Pat Sweeney, were chased around and out of the yard by a billy goat of whose owner they merely wanted to ask the whereabouts of a neighbor for whom they had a summons . . . and in Macon the whole police force rushed a clothing store when the burglar alarm went off just at shift changing time but all they found was a bird dog accidentally locked in for the night and pawing furiously to get out.

Civic leaders and city officials who helped in last spring's aluminum gathering campaign at Carthage now are writing irate letters to the government asking why the big pile of the supposedly valuable metal isn't removed from the courthouse yard to some more utilitarian center.

Most towns are proud of their claims to antiquity, but the Moberly Monitor Index ran into a challenge with an item saying Moberly was the youngest town in Randolph county . . . A Higbee resident said that town "had not been thought about" when Moberly started in 1866.

The Boonville Daily News headline announcing a "hell factory" for that shoe center meant just what it said . . . but it startled us, probably because the world has seemed filled with so many heels in recent years.

Official Seat For Churc h Head

Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, Washington, D. C., famous national shrine, in which an official Seat for the Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church has just been installed and dedicated (October 22). It becomes the center from which acts incident to the office of Presiding Bishop will emanate.

Young People Had Chili Supper

The young people of the Gospel Tabernacle met Tuesday evening, October 14 at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Ervin Kelley, 2212 South Ohio avenue, and had a chili supper.

Games and singing were enjoyed during the evening.

Those present were: Hazel Ford, Evelyn Huffman, Doris Kelley, Mary Holman, Ila Paxton, Sara Spry, Dorothy Spry, Ellen Ford, Louise Paxton, Norman Paxton, Marcella Gard, Edna May Gard, Dwight Strange, Frankie Craig, Shirlene Vinson, Daisy Vinson, Maxine Kroenke, Tommy Pettis, Philip Pettis, Georgia Pettis, Lizzie Pettis, Ray Huffman, Armellia Wells, Jimmie Vansell, Junior Davidson, Charles Holman, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Martin, Rev. and Mrs. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. John Burke, Floyd Craig, Donald Pettis and Mrs. Albert Kroenke.

Friendship Class Held Meeting

Mrs. J. D. White of La Monte was hostess to the Friendship club at her home Thursday afternoon. At the conclusion of the business session the president, Mrs. C. N. Moore presented Mrs. W. E. Pace, chairman of the American Citizenship committee who was assisted in the afternoon program by Mesdames H. T. Bass, Clyde Swope, Ida King and A. H. Martin.

The subject of the program dealt with "How much have I done to help my fellowman to help himself?" The fact was emphasized that every good citizen should be winning to give their best services without consideration of personal gain.

A plate lunch was served by the hostess to the club members and three guests.

Obtained Marriage License

A marriage license was issued in Kansas City to Francis Reichert, Sedalia, and Mary Brager, of Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

RELIGIOUS REMARKABLES

By R. O. BERG

This feature sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Man----His Brother's Keeper

"I am a man and whatever concerns humanity is of interest to me."
—Terence

Wise and humane beyond his era, Terence sensed a great religious truth when he penned these lines. He was a writer of comedy—a Roman who was more aware, perhaps, of the laughter than of the "tears of things" . . . But throughout his career, humanity was his supreme concern . . . the focal point for his energy—intellectual and physical. That he spent this energy to good purpose, we cannot doubt.

For today, thinking people of all races, classes and creeds conclude with Terence, that whatever concerns even a single segment of the human family is of concern to all. Recent world events have brought this truth home to us in terms shocking and unmistakable.

And in the light of these events, we see with fresh insight the significance of what Religion—Jewish, Protestant and Catholic—has always taught us:

That man is indeed his brother's keeper . . . That each one of us, as an individual and as a member of society, is charged with the welfare of humanity . . . not only in the spiritual realm . . . but in every phase of life which affects the spirit . . . whether it be social, political or economic.

SERMONETTE
THE SON OF GOD

By Dr. Harry S. May,
Rabbi of Temple Beth El

The great German philosopher Immanuel Kant said once while propounding his philosophical theses: "I like to awaken you from your 'dogmatic slumber'." With this expression he tried to revolutionize the minds of his adherents, to prepare them for a new liberalism—or better for a more tolerant attitude toward people and their ways of thinking in general. Looking at the miseries of the world which absorb and engulf the individual, which make a person subject to political caprice and despotism, Kant defended the fundamental right of the individual to think for himself and to choose for himself—for his own good. He realized that people and nations live divided and separated from each other because of their narrow-mindedness which is a result of their education and tradition, he knew that people live without mutual understanding and esteem due to the fact that they are pitilessly and inevitably squeezed into a life which is ruled by "dogmas and systems."

It seems to me that the words and ideas of Kant propounded more than 100 years ago have still their validity, are still true to a large extent. We all have hoped that humanity will advance on the long road of cultural progress, we all thought that the peoples of earth could live together in unity and harmony, that with the growth of human intelligence artificial barriers would fall and create a world inhabited by a happy union of nations—as though we lived in one house, under one roof, a great and prosperous family. Unfortunately, the political and spiritual developments in the last decades have shown that the vision of our modern prophets has been an illusion. We live today more than ever before divided into groups and classes, parties and blocs. We form democratic forces against axis forces—and try desperately to uphold "long cherished ideals and principles," although they were perceived and understood by the majority of the people. We still live in a "dogmatic slumber," we are still prejudiced—lacking enlightment and knowledge of life and life's purpose.

There are many a people who believe—and I refer now to those who call themselves religious—that they have "God on lease," that they can buy eternal life only for themselves, that the others—who have different ways of worshipping and approaching God—are inferior and not chosen for a life to come. They do believe in their "dogmatic slumber," that they are the true sons of God, His children and thus preferred in every respect like a protege in the eyes of his mater. At this point we are standing at the root of our problem: We can not solve the world's problems by at large if we are not in the position to see clearly our own conditions which seem to make life so intolerable and difficult.

Aside from all religious considerations—we call ourselves "human beings"—we should learn one thing: That we are all God's children, that we are all created in His image—although some of us have not too white a complexion.

We should know that we are Beings, and that it is His will that we inhabit this world of ours. We are spirit of His spirit, and—miracles of all miracles—we dare to think and to feel differently in order to make life as colorful as possible, in order to register progress and to promote good will among each other. This is life in its complexity. Some of us worship, and some of us don't, some of us speak of Him in different languages, have different ways to hallow His name. But we are all united in one great ideal: to prove ourselves to be His sons, His children, worthy to bear the name Human Beings, men.

Who is the true Son of God? I know that each one of you will give me different answers, the Christian and the Jew alike. We should, however, make one great distinction between The Son of God and us, His children. We are tolerant enough, too broadminded as to assume that each one among us is a Son of God; by no means. We do realize that the individual very seldom ascends to the heights of human perfection—like Joshua of Nazareth, Moses, Jeremiah, Buddha or Confutze. But one thing we do know for sure; that we have within ourselves the talent and the pre-disposition to become the Sons of God through true feelings of kinship, through our ability to set forth their lives as an example to us, and through our willingness to follow their footsteps and teachings in a dignified and truly human manner. Life has shown that we can advance, that we are given the chance to perfect ourselves. Why, may we ask, is it not possible that we human beings can not strive to an approximate perfection in order to come as close as possible to the life of our master?

We all do believe to be chosen—somehow—otherwise we would not be alive, would not breathe, partake in His spirit. Each one of us is in the word's fullest meaning a Son of God, destined to play his part on earth. Realizing this, why is it that people hate and look down upon each other. Why is it that religions can not live peacefully side by side—without being afraid of competition and the zeal of their representatives? What can we expect from a world as a whole and its peoples if we "His Children," if we who believe in a common Father, are not united, ready to defend His name, and willing to sacrifice like true sons of a great father?

The world will never be happy, never breathe relieved—if we His sons and children are "slumbering behind our dogmas"—which divide people—like families in a big tenement. You all know this, that each child has different ways to love a father, but they all do it, and they all choose different words, various approaches. If we are able to recognize this important fact. Humanity will cease to suffer.

It is to me as though Kant has been a prophet calling upto us: Awaken ye people from your dogmatic slumber. The world ails and convulses, is shaken in its funaments, Is our belief in Him shaken? If the peoples on earth learn to realize that they are all equals, that they are all Sons of God, His children, then we might witness again—some day—His blessings, and peace on earth. Do always remember: God doesn't need you, but you do need Him, you His son, and you, His children.

Murder In Paradise

By MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

Copyright, 1941, NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Maudie O'Connor, vacationing at Paradise Lake with her school teacher daughter, Mary, has a lot of theories about the murder of handsome, sophisticated Herbert Cord, whose body they discovered, doubts that the inquest's implication of gangster Stush Veretti explains the second Paradise murder—that of Miss Millie Morris. Involved in a romantic triangle were Jeanie Morris, pretty niece of straight-laced Miss Millie, Cord, and the girl he brought to Paradise this year, Margie Dixon. Dennis Flynn, old flame of Mary's and reporter on the case, local editor Tod Palmer who loves Jeanie, elderly innkeeper Chris Gordon, and other old residents and newcomers to Paradise are baffled by the mysteries, as are the state police.

JEANIE MORRIS

CHAPTER X

THE next day found Maudie too exhausted from the previous night's excitement to stir out of bed. It was a good day to stay there anyway, gray and blowy with little whitecaps making our peaceful lake cold and angry-looking.

In the afternoon I decided to go out. A farm girl, who came in a couple of times a week to clean, would take care of Maudie and I felt that some of that fresh breeze would get my own mind off the second crime.

I really had no intention of going to the Morris home, but once headed in that direction I began to think of Jeanie, her world completely torn to pieces. Since Maudie and I had been rather prominent in both affairs, it seemed only right that I should stop in to see her.

The housekeeper opened the door. I thought that young Tod Palmer's description, old scurpuss, fitted her. But she was civil and showed me into a Victorian style parlor, hideous with marble-topped tables and uncomfortable chairs—a cheerful place for a girl to entertain her best beau, I decided.

Jeanie came in, looking like a mid-Victorian wraith herself, in plain black crepe, and her white face framed in brown hair. I must have been the first one at the house after the police and the doctor, and she seemed childishly grateful for my presence. We said the usual trite, polite things and then I offered her a cigaret. She shook her head and started to explain that she couldn't smoke there, but I handed her one and held the match.

"Things have changed now," I pointed out, "and you'd better try to relax a little." She shivered and her lips trembled with the realization that no one would again tell her she must not do this or that. "There'll be hard days ahead," I reminded her, "and you mustn't break down. Even an older person would find it difficult to bear up under two such—"

It was hard to bring out the word murder, but she supplied it. "Yes," she said, "two murders. I—I suppose they'll ask me questions again, too, won't they? You know they aren't satisfied with my answers for the other time." I knew she was referring to the alibi Tod Palmer had given her, but I was afraid to say too much.

"Police are always like that," I told her without too much conviction.

She turned to me and there were tears in her eyes. "Tod wanted to help me and he did. I'll never forget that. But—but well, I wasn't with him."

"I wouldn't admit that to many people," I said, trying to choke down my feeling of fright.

"I won't. But if I don't talk, I think I'll just crack up inside." She put her hands to her face and then seemed to regain her composure. "I like you. I have to have someone to trust."

"Well, I've heard a lot of confidences in my life," I admitted. "I'm a school teacher, if that gives you any more faith in me."

She smiled a little. "You're not like a school teacher. You're pretty and young enough to understand—"

I knew then that even if she told me she had shot Herbert Cord I'd still be on her side. She must have felt that, for she smiled again and said, "Oh, I didn't shoot him. I've never shot a gun in my life. I was angry at him, hurt and sick at having been made to look such a fool. I guess I've grown up these last few days because now I realize that his coming back here with his fiancee shouldn't have made such a difference to me. Seeing her, I wonder why he ever paid any attention to me, and after seeing them together I wonder how I could ever care for him," she admitted candidly.

* * * *

"BUT if you had lived here summer after summer with never a chance to get about with the summer visitors; never have a boy come back a second time because he was afraid of your aunt, you would know how much it meant to be with a man like Herbert Cord. He was only amused at Aunt Millie, and he made me laugh and he took me dancing. He—he never made love to me but once or twice, but by taking me around—oh, picnics and sailing—he made the summers wonderful.

"And then this summer it was all changed. My pride was hurt, and Aunt Millie made it worse by pointing out what a fool I'd made of myself." She twisted her hands and looked so miserable that I patted her cheek.

"It was only because she was so heartsick for you herself," I said.

"She was always good to me. My parents died when I was little and Aunt Millie did everything for me. But this summer we seemed at swords' points so often—and now—"

She looked out the window at the tossing green branches of the trees and the gray water, and continued, "After that scene at the inn I started home. I was sick with embarrassment. I hated to go home feeling that way because I knew Aunt Millie would notice something was wrong. I walked slowly and before I had gone very far Herbert caught up with me.

"He'd cut across the tennis court and began explaining that Margie Dixon was just overexcited and hadn't meant what she'd said. One thing led to another and when he tried to kiss me I became furious. I told him I was glad she had said what she did because finally I understood what kind of a man he was, trying to make two women miserable and then enjoying their unhappiness. I said I never wanted to see him again, and he just continued to laugh and repeat that I was being silly and why wouldn't I kiss him good night.

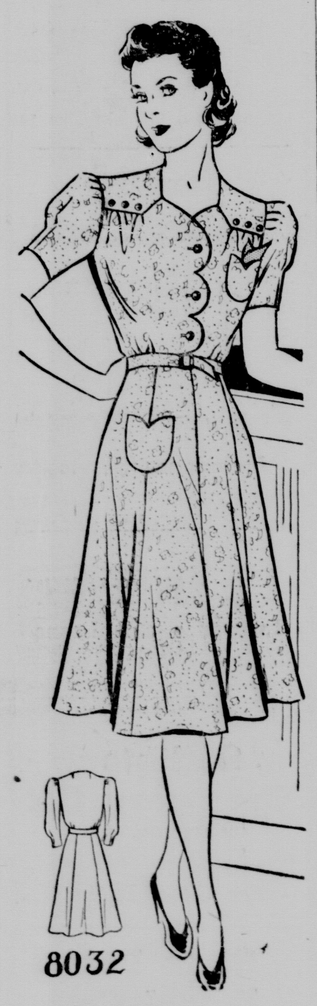

"I hit him then," she said in a low voice. "And then I started running. He didn't follow me, though, and finally I sat down on the grass and stayed there until I had quieted down and stopped crying. Then I went home. That's all there was to it, but after what happened to him who would believe me?"

Who would believe her, I wondered. Just because I was a sentimental fool and would take my oath that she was telling the truth I didn't think those hard-eyed police would feel the same.

Those New Taxes

Taxes are some of the more certain certainties of this current era with a raft of new and increased levies having just gone into effect. You're paying them, so check up on how much you know about these new federal taxes.

1. What tax is now charged on local phone calls?
2. To what figures have income tax exemptions for single and married persons been lowered?
3. What is the tax per pack on playing cards?
4. You pay the same tax on sporting goods, jewelry, furs, musical instruments, radios and refrigerators. What per cent of the purchase price is it?
5. What annual tax do owners of automobiles and of pinball machines pay?

Chileans Honor Arana, Historian and Educator

MUCH of our information about Chile comes from a 12-volume History of Chile, by Diego Barros Arana, an educator and historian who achieved fame in newspaper work and public service.

He became interested in political research as a youth. His first important work was published when he was 19 years old.

Chile honored Arana philatelically in the 1941 stamp above. The stamp commemorates the 400th anniversary of the founding of Santiago, Chile, birthplace of Arana.

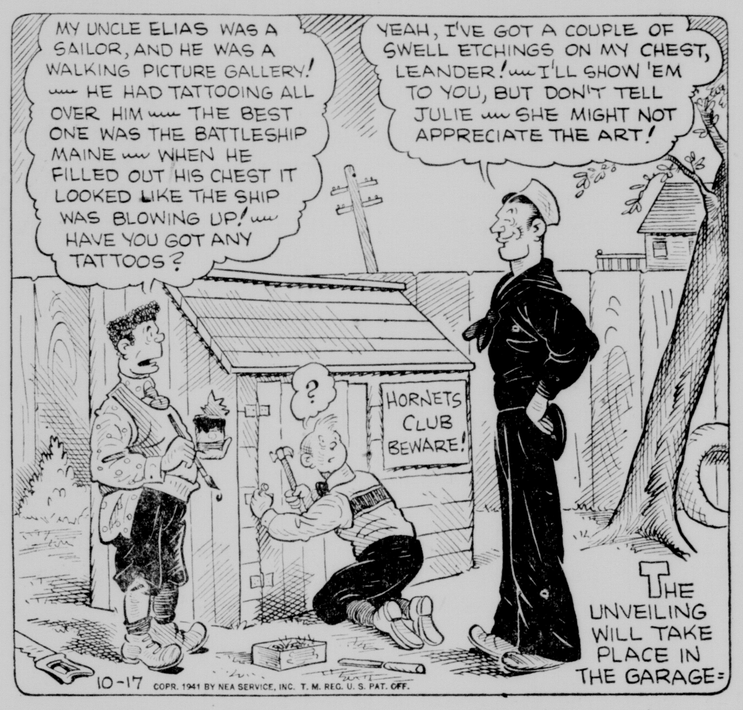

Arana continued to write during his early 20's. He contributed to newspapers and in 1859—at the age of 29—was exiled for his journalistic activities.

That, however, proved a boon to the historian who spent the next few years in Europe gathering historical material and visiting national archives. Four years later he was repatriated and was named rector of the National Institute upon his return to Chile in 1863.

Grain Prices Rally Briskly

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Grain prices, which were in near-collapse yesterday, rallied briskly today to recover much of the Thursday losses.

Heavy buying soon after the opening lifted wheat more than 5 cents, corn 7 cents, oats 6 cents and soybeans 6 to 8 cents. Traders attributed much of this buying to short covering and activity by professional and commercial interests taking advantage of the recent price break. Later, net gains of wheat were extended to almost 7 cents a bushel.

Wheat closed 5 to 5¾ cents higher than yesterday, Dec. $1.10¾ to $1.11¼, May $1.15¼ to $1.15¾; corn 5½ to 6⅞ cents up, Dec. 74¼c to 74⅜c, May 80c to 80¼c; oats 3⅝ to 4⅛ cents up; rye 2⅞ to 3 cents higher; soybeans 4¾c to 6¾ cents higher; lard 42 to 50 cents.

Mickey Rooney Made Friend Of James Montgomery Flagg

By James Montgomery Flagg

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—The Special News Service)—I had no idea of drawing Mickey Rooney, in fact I avoided any picture he was in. I didn't like him. I don't like tough little smart alecks.

Pictures of this dreadful brat throwing himself into strange dowagers' laps at elegant parties where he obviously was as out of place as a bullpup in a birdcage disgusted me. I expressed myself thusly to my guide.

He smiled wickedly and said, "Why don't you draw him just because you feel that way? It would be funny if you changed your mind about him!"

"Very likely! But—by gorry, I'll take you up on that! Lead on!"

The rest, as we cliche, is history tomic history. I sketched him in one of those stifling trailers they call dressing rooms in the studios.

Wanted His Awfulness

He threw his chubby little body into a camp chair, leg over one of the arms—he could just make it—and he said, "shall I brush my hair?" No! I wanted him in all his awfulness.

"I think this is quite an honor, Mr. Flagg!" It had started! The wily little runt!

"You come from New York, don't you?" I growled. I was visioning tent' avyner. "Sure—Brooklyn. How did you know?"

The director assistant poked his head around the door jamb—they wanted him on the set.

In No Hurry

"Take your time, Mr. Flagg!" Smiled Joe Yule (Mickey Rooney to you). I was licked! From that moment I was his fan! Mind you, he's all I said—but he's irresistible! Then I saw why he was box office number one. (Although Bob Hope is just passing him today.)

I showed Mickey the sketch saying—"there's the brat!" He liked it—"Sessir — one hundred per cent brat!" he grinned.

Over on the set I sat and watched him with a wide grin. I looked around, and every one from director to the grips was grinning as this homely little imp clowned all over the scene. He can't help it—he's over-vitalized—can't keep still. It was agony for him to sit for me for fifteen minutes. It made him numb.

A Born Clown

He's a born clown and farceur—and does he know his stuff! The director took me over to the side of the set and showed me behind a screen where all hands crowded around, a sequence of the Streets of Paris stuff in miniature—sound track and all—Mickey playing several characters, a protean clown, at stop speed with Judy Garland.

A publicity feller listed Mickey's talents—and others bore him out. The irresistible brat is a sort of unbelievable genius. On top of his being able to imitate anybody, he can act, sing, dance and play every instrument except the violin. He was written four song hits and a symphony!

Having met Mickey I guess the movie fans are not as bumb as I thought!

Strike Halts Steel Plant Operations

Men At Union Meeting Booed Their Regional Director

By The Associated Press

A new strike halted operations today at a big Detroit steel plant, while at Pascagoula, Miss., AFL union leaders recommended resumption of work at a strike-bound shipyard.

The dispute at the Great Lakes Steel Corporation in River Rouge was the fourth in four months, and officials of the firm termed it a "wildcat" strike. The plant employs 8,000 men and has many defense orders.

Four hundred men present at a union meeting last night booed down Orville Kincaid, their regional director, when he attempted to announce the results of wage adjustment negotiations he had carried on with the management. The CIO union has had a contract with the company since July 16.

Holcombe Made Announcement

The announcement of the back-to-work move at the Pascagoula yard of the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corporation came from federal conciliator, Bryce P. Holcombe, who said that representatives of various metal trades unions had agreed to recommend to their membership resumption of operations after three days idleness.

The strike, affecting 2,800 men, was certified to the national defense mediation board by the labor department, which explained that the AFL boilermakers union had struck because some of the pipe welders in the plant were trying to form an independent union.

The yard has $150,000,000 in national defense orders.

The possibility of a renewed work stoppage loomed for steel company operated "captive" soft coal mines as a result of a deadlock in negotiations of workers and management before the national defense mediation board at Washington.

Demand Closed Shop

The CIO United Mine Workers are demanding a closed shop agreement for 43,000 employes of the captive mines in Pennsylvania West Virginia, Alabama, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

The mediation board last month arranged a 30-day truck following a week's walkout by the union miners. Some Pennsylvania union locals were reported to have voted to walk out next Saturday, 24 hours before the truce is due to expire.

Union acceptance of a compromise wage boost ended a strike of service workers which had closed eight of the largest hotels in Pittsburgh for 15 days. The hotel operators agreed to increase payrolls by $215,000 a year —a 14 per cent hike as compared with the 20 per cent originally demanded.

Expects Government Help

The president of consolidated aircraft corporation, whose bomber plant at San Diego has $750,000,000 in orders, served notice yesterday that he expected the government to pay part of the wage increases negotiated recently for AFL machinists.

Major R. H. Fleet, president of the corporation, declared the increases would amount to $82,000,000 and would "break the company" unless the government accepted part of the extra expense.

"I will not sign the (wage increase) contract unless assured that the government will stand by us," Fleet said.

Consolidated's plane contracts were understood to contain an escalator clause requiring the government to pay any additional costs in manufacture of the aircraft.

CIO Walkout

A walkout of CIO United Rubber Workers tied up production today in the rim division of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co's plant No. 3, at Akron, Ohio, which the spokesmen said is engaged 60 per cent on national defense work.

Unionists contended they lost an hour and a half yesterday through no fault of their own.

A CIO strike to enforce demands for a "union maintenance" contract clause today closed the Lakeside Steel Improvement Co., at Cleveland, Ohio, engaged in heat treating of defense items.

The CIO United Automobile Workers union called the walkout after a breakdown in negotiations for contract renewal.

Bands composed of members of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL) were ordered off all sustaining programs of the Columbia Broadcasting system and the National Broadcasting company networks yesterday by James C. Petrilio, AFM president.

Union spokesmen said the strike order resulted from a dispute with two radio stations in Pittsburgh, WJAS, CBS outlet, and KQV, NBC outlet, over union demands that they employ eleven-man sustaining orchestras.

Recommissioned Submarines Transferred To Great Britain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Secretary of Navy Knox announced today that two recommissioned navy submarines would be transferred to Great Britain under provisions of the lease-lend act.

In issuing the secretary's announcement, the navy department said that the ships, both of which are operating in the Atlantic, would be manned by British officers and crews before leaving American waters.

One of the submarines was described by the navy as being of the "R" type and the other of the "S" type. The "R" vessels were first commissioned in the spring of 1919 and decommissioned in 1930. They were recommissioned in the summer of 1940. Subs of this type have a displacement of 530 tons.

The "S" type ships were first commissioned in the fall of 1923 and were decommissioned in 1930. They were again brought into service in the summer of 1940. This type has a displacement of 800 tons.

Planning Events For Hallowe'en

Only two weeks remain until Hallowe'en, and the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce has begun preparations for the annual Sedalia celebration of the event. This year's program will be held in cooperation with the Missouri Pacific Boosters club. Kenneth Williams has been appointed chairman of the 1941 Hallowe'en committee by Tom Walch, special activities chairman of the C. of C. and Robert Overstreet, vice president in charge of special activities division.

Members of the committee, who will meet at the Chamber of Commerce tonight at 7 o'clock are Kenneth Johnson, William Brown, William Hurlbut, Carl Urban, Abe Silverman, N. P. Meyers, Sam Highleyman, Reece Dillard, Charles Maggard, Morris Walker, Carl Goist, Philip Pfeiffer and F. A. Enloe.

Consider Other Factories Here

Quickly following up the excellent work done in securing a shoe factory for Sedalia, the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce yesterday announced that it had communicated with other prospective manufacturing plants in regard to the establishment of branches here.

A client interested in establishing a company to manufacture leather goods, which would employ both male and female workers, has contacted the C. of C. office, Ellsworth Green, secretary, said last night. The building for the plant should have from 10,000 to 15,000 square feet of floor space available for rental.

The other plant, a branch factory, is for the manufacture of garments and would probably start with 50 sewing machine operators, later increasing this number to 150. Officials of the company stated that they would like to lease a building with or without a purchase option. The company would be willing to construct a building under certain conditions.

Both companies prefer a city with Sedalia's central location, and of its population. The excellent labor situation and transportation facilities in Sedalia have proved greatly in its favor.

Former Sedalian Re-Elected

FORT WORTH Tex., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Lewis A. Quigley, superintendent of the Fort Worth City Water Department, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the southwest section, American Water Works Association, at close of a four-day meeting today.

A mail ballot will be taken to determine next year's convention city. New Orleans and Little Rock, Ark., are contenders.

Mr. Quigley is a former Sedalian, and the family when here built and occupied the stone residence at 216 East Broadway. He is a nephew of the late L. P. Andrews, who was for many years manager of the Sedalia Water Co.

Petition to Buy Water System

Document States Signers Interested In Owning Same

A petition to investigate the merits, and consider ways and means whereby the city of Sedalia could own a municipal water works system by purchasing the system now serving the city of Sedalia, is being circulated in the city today by Samuel P. Harlan, attorney.

"Other cities," said Harlan, "have successfully owned and operated their own water systems and this is a move to bring the matter to the attention of the people and learn their attitude in the matter. The city council members have already expressed themselves, one hundred per cent, as favoring a municipally owned water system.

"Now that we have the shoe factory," said Mr. Harlan, "we will want other factories and industries, and I believe we would be better able to bring them here if the city should own the plant.

The petition, as being circulated by Mr. Harlan, to be presented to the mayor and city council, reads:

"We, the undersigned, citizens of the city of Sedalia, Missouri, hereby represent to the mayor and to the city council of the city of Sedalia, Missouri, that we are interested in the advisability of the ownership by the city of Sedalia of a municipal water works system.

"We believe that if the present water system known as the Sedalia Water company could be purchased by the city of Sedalia for a reasonable amount under a reasonable plan and approved by a vote of the people, that it would be a distinct benefit to the citizens of the city of Sedalia and in addition thereto, create a real incentive for industry to consider Sedalia as a desirable location.

Favor Investigation

"We favor an investigation and a sincere effort to ascertain the desirability of purchasing the water works system now in use in Sedalia, and if said purchase is deemed desirable, that it be financed through the issuance of bonds payable solely and only from the revenues of the water system, so that no increase in taxes will be necessary, and with the view that the city of Sedalia will then own a water system which will return a substantial income to the city.

"We therefore, respectfully request the Honorable Mayor and the members of the City Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, to investigate the merits and to consider ways and means whereby the present water works system known as the Sedalia Water Company may be purchased and used as a municipally owned water system by the city of Sedalia, Pettis count, Missouri."

Moscow In Hands Of Army

Reliable Sources Say Leaders Will Set Up Wartime Capital At Kazan

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 17—(AP)— The leaders of Russia's government or at least part of them were reported early to have left Moscow to the desperate arms of the Red army, and it was believed they were setting up a wartime capital at Kazan, 450 miles to the east, to continue the fight.

There was no immediate official confirmation of the reports, which came from reliable sources just as Washington dispatches disclosed that United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and his embassy staff were leaving Moscow in a general diplomatic evacuation for an undisclosed destination in the interior—presumably Kazan

In Hands Of Army

London sources suggested the Stalin government had left the fate of Moscow, now a capital in name only, in the hands of the army. They declared it would be defended foot by foot against German troops driving down from the west and northwest.

The Moscow radio was still broadcasting up to midnight, but it issued only propaganda stories and no news.

Moscow stations failed to send the post-midnight communique at the usual hour.

The Russian embassy in London gave one reply to all phone calls over a period of several hours: "There is no one in now. Call back in a half hour."

British authorities replied "no comment" on queries for confirmation of reports of the Russian government move. They said, however, that if the Russians announced the withdrawal of the government from the capital it would emphasize their determination to continue the fight.

2000th Elks Meeting Here

$2,000 In Bonded Indebtedness Paid Off By Local Lodge

The 2,000th meeting of the Sedalia Lodge No. 125, B. P. O. Elks, was held last night in the Elks was held Wednesday night in the Elks home, Fourth street and 70 members present. Two thousand dollars of the bonded indebtedness was paid off at this meeting.

Esteemed Leading Knight H. C. Davis, presided in the absence of Exalted Ruler George H. Scruton, who is in Chicago on business. A telegram expressing regrets for being unable to attend the meeting was received from Mr. Scruton, which was read before the lodge. Past Exalted Ruler E. P. Neef acted as Esteemed Leading Knight.

Dr. M. E. Gouge, past Exalted Ruler of the lodge, gave a brief history of the Sedalia lodge covering a period of three years when the lodge was located in the Bell Telephone Co. building, of the building of the present Elks Home, and activities up to the present time He told of the troubled times, but added that the lodge was able to weather all storms of depression and has come through each year making payments on the indebtedness. Now the local organization is in the best financial condition it has been in, in many years, he said.

One of the oldest members of the lodge was in attendance, Ellis R. Smith, who is 87 years old, and who was initiated into the order at the second meeting of the lodge At the time the Sedalia lodge received its charter he was in Chicago after a prisoner, being at that time Sheriff of Pettis county, but was taken into the lodge on its second meeting night. He holds membership card number 77.

Following the business session a "dutch lunch" was served.

Russian Reports Say Red Army's Resistance Has Not Been Broken

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 16.—Despite a "deterioration" of Russian defenses west of Moscow, Russian dispatches declared today that the Red army's resistance had not and could not be broken.

Germany, they said, now is exerting her fullest offensive power.

The official mid-day communique, announcing that the defenders "continued to fight the enemy along the whole front," said that action was particularly intense in the western direction, the locale where the "deterioration" was reported for the night of Oct. 14-15.

This might indicate that the breach had been closed in the last 24 hours.

"The Germans continued to throw fresh units into the battle," the communique said.

The most optimistic language came from Russian war correspondents.

"The enemy has failed to break or weaken the resistance of the Red army," wrote one war correspondent.

Red Army Struggling

"He has failed to break down its tenacity. He could not and will not be able to do it! The Red army is alive and struggling. It has incalculable and inexhaustible reserves in our people who are determined to defend their country and their just cause.

"New replacements and formations are increasing the strength of the Soviet troops. The whole people has become Red armymen and is getting ready to fight for a long time, persistently until victory despite the temporary successes of the enemy."

The correspondent of the government newspaper Izvestia wrote:

Putting Everything Into Action

"Now the Hitlerite cannibals are pressing hard to get at Moscow. They are throwing into action everything they could scrape up at home, in the occupied countries, or withdraw from other directions of the front."

The writer went on to describe the crushing of a German tank thrust along the Vyazma-Moscow road on Oct. 9.

A break fraught with peril for Moscow had been reported in the belated night communique, which acknowledged that German tank crews and motorized infantrymen had bludgeoned a path through Russian lines in a huge night attack.

On the Leningrad front, the latest war report said, the Russians captured a number of prisoners.

Impairment of Red army defenses west of the capital was acknowledged by the Soviet information bureau in a starkly worded communique.

Moving From Capital.

(The Japanese foreign office announced in Tokyo that the Russian foreign commissariat had advised the Japanese embassy staff in Tokyo to prepare to withdraw. Women, children and aged men have been moving from the Soviet capital for several days under the city's militant defense program.

Speaking of an action which evidently had occurred 25 hours before, the information bureau said in an early morning communique:

"During the night of Oct. 14-15, the position in the western direction of the front deteriorated.

"The German Fascist armies hurled a large quantity of tanks and motorized infantry against our units and, in one sector, broke through our defenses.

Opposed Enemy Heroically

"Our forces opposed the enemy heroically, inflicting heavy losses, but were compelled to retreat in this sector."

The exact zone of the breakthrough was not disclosed, but even before the communique was issued—two or three hours later than usual—Russians had acknowledged that the supreme crisis was at hand.

German columns were reported previously to have thrust closest to the capital at Mozhaisk, 60 miles to the west, and at Kalinin, 95 miles northwest, in the all-out central front drive.

The Moscow press called on civilians to fight with Red army troops in defense of the capital—a city of 4,137,000 which developed from a forest clearing settlement founded 785 years ago by Prince George Dolgoruki.

We'll be glad when the old world gets back to having only its one revolution a day.

News Flashes From War Areas Of The World

German and Rumanian armies have battered their way into the big Russian grain port of Odessa and are fighting in the streets against the last resistance of the garrison and people's army which held out through 59 days of siege, the Rumanian high command announced today.

The city was reported in flames.

The Rumanians said that in its last desperate defense against the onslaught it sent every able bodied man, woman and child into the firing lines.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 16—(AP) The besieged Russian port of Odessa is being destroyed by flames within defense lines manned by every man, woman and child able to bear arms, Rumanian military dispatches declared tonight.

They said flames hundreds of feet high could be seen for miles, lighting scenes of confusion and ruin.

The Rumanians declared the city's main defenses had been breached, three suburbs had fallen and axis troops were within six to ten miles of the city's western and northern limits.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Japan is still negotiating with the United States in an attempt to maintain peace in the Pacific, Major General Kiyotomi Okamoto was quoted today in a Domei broadcast, but the Japanese people should be fully prepared for the worst in case the talks fail.

Okamoto, chief of the Second section of the army general staff, was quoted further:

"No matter what change may take place in the current international situation Japan is determined to pursue her resolute policy of bringing the China incident to a successful conclusion as well as work toward creation of the prosperity sphere in East Asia."

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Oct. 16—(AP)—Marshal Petain tonight ordered a speedy public trial for five men accused of leading France to defeat against Germany, including former Premiers Leon Blum and Edouard Daladier and the one time allied generalissimo, Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

New Officers For State Osteopaths

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 16—(AP)—Dr. J. Lincoln Hirst, St. Louis, is the new president of the Missouri Association of Osteopathic Physicians and surgeons. Other new officers are D. A. Squires, Fulton and Dr. Mabel Anderson, Kansas City, vice presidents, and Dr. H. D. McClure, Kirksville, secretary-treasurer.

Decide To Close Pythian Home

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 16—(AP)—The Knights of Pythias have decided to disseminate operation of their Pythian home for the aged and other lodge dependents at Springfield, Missouri.

Lodge officials said they considered the home no longer necessary because of modern social legislation. The 30 present occupants of the home will be cared for in private homes, officers said and the lodge will continue its practice of caring for dependent members.

P. G. Walker, newly elected grand chancellor, named a committee to liquidate the Springfield property.

Explosion At Magnesium Plant

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—One person was killed and three others were injured in an explosion shortly after noon at the National Magnesium Corporation plant at 429 Adams street, a company spokesman said.

Two injured were taken to St. James hospital.

Further details were not immediately available.

The plant is in the ironbound section, a short distance north of Newark airport.

Fire Chief Goes To Veterans' Hospital

John Lueck, Sedalia's fire chief, has entered the U. S. veterans' hospital at Excelsior Springs for an examination and treatment if it is found necessary.

Discord Over Relations With U. S. And Course Towards Russia

By The Associated Press

The Japanese cabinet resigned today in disagreement over issues of empire as Japan stood apparently at the crossroads weighing peace against a possible open break with the United States or war in Soviet Siberia.

Her choice seemed linked closely with developments in the war of the west where half-ringed Moscow had come to its hour of peril with the mechanized assault forces of Japan's Axis ally, Germany, reported only 62 miles from the Soviet capital —their onrush still unstemmed.

Authoritative sources in British and Russian-guarded Iran said the Soviet government and foreign diplomatic missions had completed arrangements to move 45 miles east of Moscow to the crowded provincial city of Kazan if Moscow could not be saved. The Japanese embassy already had quit Moscow for an undisclosed destination, reportedly at the advice of the Russian government.

The resignation of Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye's cabinet came out of a welter of high government conferences just three months after his previous government fell.

The exact issues of their disagreement were not disclosed immediately but it was known that the ministers were not in accord on the empire's relations with the United States or its course toward Russia.

Konoye and some other leaders were reported reliably to be holding to the hope of diplomatic settlement of differences between the United States and Japan.

But pressure for abandonment of this course was increasingly strong in the Tokyo press which declared efforts to reach an accord had failed and demanded that attempts toward conciliation with the United States be ended.

The successes of German arms in European Russia are understood to have played a prominent part in the Japanese government discussions, too, with the strong military faction watching intently for an hour of weakness in which Japan might strike an effective blow for the axis from the east.

Crisis Faces Japan

A Japanese naval officer, Capt. Hideo Hiraide, director of naval intelligence, declared the Japanese-United States relations are at a cross roads and might lead to war. He said a crisis faced Japan through steady tightening of encirclement of her islands.

In Shanghai, a German report from Hanoi, French Indo-China, said the Japanese were massing forces in northern Indo-China "presumably for action against China."

Such a drive would be aimed at the Burma road, a supply route for Chungking.

A report in Peiping, China, said the Japanese were mobilizing all able bodied white Russians between 17 and 40 years of age throughout north China for six months of compulsory military training, supposedly to serve in a possible Japanese-Soviet war.

Defense Line Reeling

The German high command pictured the entire Russian defense line as reeling from the fury of two weeks of intensified assault with dive bombers, tanks and masses of infantry.

It declared that Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, and Kaluga, 90 miles southwest of the capital, were in German hands. These apparently were the flanking forward points of the semi-circle of steel being closed on the hard-pressed capital.

The German statement that Nazi troops were 62 miles from Moscow referred apparently to the sector west of the city, where the fighting had been reported along the old Napoleonic invasion road near Borodino, 70 miles from the capital, and Mozhaisk, 60 miles from Moscow.

Authoritative London sources declared the battle west of the Soviet capital "now has reached its crisis" but added that although very heavy fighting continued "it would not appear that the Germans made any very big advance during the last 24 hours."

Broken Odessa Lines

Far to the south, the Rumanian army announced its forces had broken the defense lines of Odessa and the Black sea port was in flames The Rumanians and Germans have been before Odessa since August 19.

Nothing Inevitable, Even That Slump

Nothing is less certain to happen than the inevitable. That's a trick phrase, of course. What's meant is "the inevitable." In short, just about the time men get together and say "This is inevitable," something else happens.

It may well be that way with the post-war slump. Some men are so sure of it that they positively revel in gloomy head-shakings; they wallow in grim forebodings of "Oh, what a crash there's going to be when this thing is all over!"

It all seems so logical: the defense plants suddenly shut down; a couple of million men come streaming back from the army; the plug is pulled on unlimited federal spending; and down we all go in one great resounding crash that would make 1929 look like a feather-duster dropping off a footstool. It's the fact that everybody's expecting such a crash that first led us to think that maybe it won't happen. Everybody has been wrong so often.

* * *

One reassuring thing is that so many people are already thinking about ways to avoid that "inevitable" crash. Chairman Sloan of General Motors is only one big-time executive who has every department of his plant already intent on studying what may be done with new productive facilities after the defense emergency has passed. Many other executives have their eye on the same problem.

Similarly, many planning agencies and individuals interested in creating better living conditions, are already plotting out future needs. The Architectural Forum has set up a panel of 200 advisers to see what planning, zoning, design, construction, financing, taxation and building may contribute to keep production rolling against any "post-war slump."

* * *

They have found, for instance, that by 1945 the 10 billion dollars worth of commercial construction of the Twenties will be 20 years old and ready for modernization. By 1945, a third of all the 40 million dwelling units in the country will be more than 50 years old. By 1945, six million of those dwelling units will be unfit for use, and 18 million will call either for major reconstruction or replacement.

The need for a vast post-war construction program in many fields is already evident. This does not necessarily imply that it will all have to be done by public funds. The more study is made now of means of attracting private capital into construction, the better chance there is of attracting it promptly when the time comes.

The more thought directed now against this "inevitable" slump, the less inevitable it becomes.

Knowledge, Power And Victory

Down in that far corner of the world that lies between India and the Mediterranean, between the Caspian and Arabian seas, the winning of World war II may be at stake. Most Americans know next to nothing of these lands, which were the cradles of civilized man. Now they may be his bier.

But in Britain they know about these far places. Stuffed away on the shelves of the stuffier London clubs are the forgotten books written by travelers of this restless race: "Six Months With the Djhigur of Brandee" or "Tenting In Tabriz With the Sheik Hadji Dinar." We laughed at those ponderous travel books when they penetrated to America. But now it is shown that perhaps they were not so vain; their writers were exploring the odd corners of the world in which World war II may now go too a decision. The better ones, like Doughty and Lawrence and Bell, amassed knowledge now being translated by the British army into terms of power, perhaps into ultimate victory.

Peace Has Its Victories

In the midst of the din of perhaps the most titanic war of all time, peace timidly steps up to register a small victory.

Yet who shall say it is a small victory when Argentina, Brazil, the United States and other American nations peacefully persuade Ecuador and Peru to conclude an armistice in their border war, each withdrawing troops from the disputed area pending negotiations for more permanent settlement?

In any time, such an achievement is not negligible. In times like these, such a victory for peace, small though it is in the face of terrible World war II, is perhaps even greater than it would be in normal times. It shines like Shakespeare's little candle, "a good deed in a naughty world." Yet it is from just such tiny flickers of light that great beacons are kindled.

Oil That Troubles the Waters

A new attempt is now under way to settle the oil controversy with Mexico, which has bubbled furiously for three years though it has been turbulent since 1917.

Through the highest officials of the U. S. State Department, Mexico now offers to place $9,000,000 in escrow pending final appraisal of the expropriated properties of certain American companies. If the companies accept, this sum would be regarded as preliminary to final settlement, the difference to be made up later either in oil or in dollars.

This proposal at least has the merit of definiteness, and it appears about the only means of approach to solution since private negotiations with Standard and several other companies broke down a year ago. In the meantime, however, the Sinclair interests accepted $8,500,000 for their claims.

* * *

How close an approximation of justice would be done by accepting this tentative offer, and building a final settlement on it, is a matter of the utmost complexity. The affected companies, including in their idea of the value of their properties all the value of the oil reserves beneath them, have made estimates as high as $150,000,000. Mexico has taken the position that she owes nothing for the value of oil in the ground, but that she should pay only for the surface properties of the companies. These one group of Mexican experts once appraised at $40,000,000, but set off against that so many claims for taxes and back wages that the companies feared nothing at all would be left for them on such a basis. The present proposal would appear to guarantee against any such result; to be roughly comparable to the Sinclair settlement.

* * *

The tracing of this controversy down from the original concessions to American oil men in the early 1900's, the new Mexican constitution of 1917 which specifically reserved sub-surface resources to the people of Mexico, the Bucareli and Morrow agreements in 1923 and 1927, and the expropriation of 1938, is a matter now of history. The present situation is "not a theory, but a fact." Whether the proposal will prevent substantial and actual loss to the companies and American investors involved is the immediate question; whether it cheats them of profits they had every right to expect they were going to make in the future is something else again.

Only an independent, technically brilliant and highly disinterested expert can say whether substantial justice is contained in the new Mexican offer. In view of the desirability of settlement, however, in which not merely stockholders but all the peoples of both countries have an interest, the offer should have the gravest and most careful consideration from the longest possible point of view.

Directors of the State Fair have ordered a thousand trees, which will be planted on the grounds this fall. A suggestion has been made for the city to plant trees and shrubs along the boulevard leading to the fair grounds in order to make it look as attractive as Broadway does. A suggestion also has been made to the Six-Mile road district to extend the rows of trees in parts of the roads outside of the city limits. The land on both sides of the boulevard is owned by J. M. Offield, Charles A. Dyer, of St. Louis, W. L. Porter, W. P. Haley, Ira Hinsdale and Major A. P. Morey.

J. O. Fisher, leader of the socialist group here, announced today that the socialist state convention would probably be held in a large tent next Saturday, since city buildings have been refused for the use of the party conference. The tent will be placed south of the Sentinel office if weather permits. If it is cold or rainy, the meeting will be held in the store room formerly occupied by the August Meier mattress factory, next to the George E. Dugan store, on East Fifth street.

Manager Lincoln, of the Missouri and Kansas Telephone company, announced today that persons who have fires to report should notify the central telephone exchange instead of calling for one of the two fire departments. As soon as central is told of the location of a fire, gongs are sounded in the two engine houses, and the departments are off in a jiffy, whereas the other method causes a delay.

LaMonte's First Fall Festival Last Week

Action Postponed On Amendment

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13—(AP)—An attempt to place the Missouri Bar Association on record as favoring repeal of the state's year-old nonpartisan court plan was defeated at the association's annual convention.

Action on a proposed constitutional amendment to give the Supreme court power to revise the state's criminal and civil codes also was postponed by the association for at least a year.

Parliamentary maneuvering was employed to prevent an association expression on the Lauf amendment to repeal the court plan while action on the proposed code amendment was delayed by the resolutions committee until a recommendation could be presented again to the association.

Both the Lauf amendment to repeal the court plan and the code revision amendment will be voted on at the November, 1942, election. The action of the convention therefore virtually precluded an expression by the association on either measure before the election.

The resolutions committee reported adversely on a resolution urging that Attorney General Roy McKittrick's opinion limiting the powers of the state highway patrol should be disregarded util the next legislature met or the Supreme court passed on the question.

The association, which ended its 2-day meeting with a banquet Saturday night, elected John Rhodes of Kansas City as president succeeding Frank C. Mann of Springfield.

Other officers, all re-elected are James A. Potter, Jefferson City, secretary; Julius H. Drucker, St. Louis, treasurer; J. Francis O'Sullivan, Kansas City, Oak Hunter, Moberly; Ray Bond, Joplin, and Allen L. Oliver, Cape Girardeau, vice-presidents.

May Raise Funds For Improvements

NEOSHO, Mo., Oct. 13—(AP)—City officials have decided to try to sell Neosho's city water and sewage disposal plants to the government as a means of obtaining improvements needed to handle population increases resulting from construction of Camp Crowder.

Mayor Glen Wood and City Attorney Paul Carver left for Kansas City to confer with Public Works Administration aides after a conference of city officials decided it would be impossible for the city to pay for 55 percent of a proposed $600,000 improvement program.

The city had asked that the improvements be instituted with the city paying only 25 percent of the cost, but the suggestion was turned down by federal officials.

A bond issue would require a two-thirds majority for passage and officials said they believed public sentiment was not sufficiently strong to bring approval of such an expenditure since much of the debt might have to be paid after the camp boom had passed.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13—(AP)—Public Works Administration officials said today that a final decision on whether the government could buy the Neosho, Mo., city water and sewage disposal systems as a means of financing improvements would have to come from Washington.

Mayor Glen Wood and City Attorney Paul Carver came here to discuss the proposition after city officials decided they could not finance half the cost of a $600,000 program needed as a result of Camp Crowder construction.

Netherlands General Killed

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Gen. G. J. Berenschot, 54, commander in chief of the Netherlands East Indies army, was killed today in the crash of an army Lockheed plane which just had taken off from an airdrome at Kenajoran for Bandoeng.

Captain Knap, pilot of the plane, and two non commissioned officers also were killed.

General Berenschot had just returned from a conference with Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke - Popham, commander in chief of British forces in the Far East. (Brooke-Popham left Singapore yesterday for conference in Australia and presumably stopped in Java to confer with the Dutch commander.)

No Holiday For Justice E. N. Smith

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 13—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Edward North Smith insisted upon holding court despite the Columbus Day legal holiday today because "Columbus did not discover America in 1492 or any other time."

"It was actually discovered several centuries before Columbus was born," he informed attorneys in refusing to postpone scheduled hearings. Elsewhere in the court house offices were empty.

Many Families In Medical Group

More than 7,432 low-income farm families comprising 35,618 persons, working with the Farm Security Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, are participating in a Group Medical Care Program.

This information was received here this week by Oscar H. DeWolf, rural rehabilitation supervisor for the FSA in Pettis county, from P. G. Beck, regional director of this federal agency at Indianapolis Ind.

The information, Mr. DeWolf said, was taken from a report for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The Group Medical Care Program, sponsored by the FSA in cooperation with local physicians, makes medical attention more readily available to low-income rural people at a cost they can afford. The plan operates on a voluntary basis.

The Group Medical Care Program makes it possible for physicians, particularly in rural areas, to give essential medical care to needy farm families at the time it is needed. It also enables the participating families to safeguard their health and receive attention as at cost they can afford to pay.

Oil and Naptha Burn In Michigan

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 13—(AP)—A roaring fire exploded more than 60,000 gallons of oil and Naphtha in nine storage tanks today and, spreading to an adjoining lumber yard, caused total damage tentatively estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000.

The fire started in the Lyons Oil Company plant and within a few minutes burning fuel had ignited yards of the Duncan lumber company, which surrounds the oil plant on three sides.

Witnesses said a "lake" of burning oil spread the blaze to the lumber piles.

In addition, coal in another yard was set afire and two automobiles parked nearby caught fire and were destroyed.

Can't Get Steel

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13—(AP)—It is problematical whether automobile builders will be able to get enough steel to make cars allotted them under OPM's limitation order, says Daily Metal Trade, with automotive position "growing steadily worse."

Bus-Train Crash Kills Six Children

Driver Also Dies In Crossing Wreck Near Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 11—(AP)—Six elementary school children and the driver were killed Friday when a school bus was struck amidships by a passenger train 20 miles east of here.

Nine other children were injured, one critically.

The sheriff's office said those dead were:

Charles F. Priddy, 55, veteran school bus driver.

Jean Seward, 12.

Guy Anderson, Jr., 13.

Hagan Austin Williams, Jr., 7.

Alma Shirley, 7

Murray Kenneth Bryan, 9.

Melvin Finis Richmond, 11.

The sheriff's office at first reported seven children dead, but later said one, Tom Emmett Richmond, 12, had only been unconscious and had recovered.

There were 19 on the bus, including the driver.

The bus was thrown about 30 yards from the crossing.

"I didn't even see the bus until it was directly in front of us," said the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis engineer, Joe Darnell of Paducah, Ky.

"I slammed on the emergency brakes and cut the power, but I don't know if I did any good. There wasn't a chance to stop."

Nine-year-old Nancy Jenkins, one of the injured children, said in a hospital tonight "every child on the bus was screaming for the driver to stop."

Investigators said if the bus was travelling east along the parallelling highway before he turned north to make the crossing he had a clear view. But if he was going in the opposite direction weeds and a high embankment would have hidden the train.

Mrs. Jackson Dies In Yard

Body Found Near Coal Shed By Two Neighbors

Mrs. Mary Jackson, 66 years old, widow of Frank Jackson and well known and pioneer resident of Sedalia, was found dead at her home, 1420 South Missouri avenue, about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon by Mrs. E. T. Crafton, 1805 South Grand avenue and Mrs. J. H. Wilken, 1421 South Missouri, neighbors of Mrs. Jackson. She had died from a heart attack and had been dead from two to three hours before she was found.

The women found Mrs. Jackson lying on the ground beside her coal shed.

Dr. W. T. Bishop, coroner, was called and after conducting an investigation said it was evident she had died from a heart attack.

Born In Osage County

She was born in Osage county, November 14, 1874. She was married to George Paxton, who passed away forty-five years ago. She later married Frank L. Jackson. They resided in Sedalia for more than forty years. Mr. Jackson died three years ago.

Club Discusses Pictures In Home

Mrs. Walter Burns was hostess to the Oak Grove Homemakers, Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Forrest Poindexter assisting.

Roll call was, "A Beauty Spot in Pettis County," and they brought to mind many beauty spots near home. One guest answered with a description of the beautiful view from the home of the hostess.

Miss Myrtle Mewes read the news letter and Mrs. Roy Petty the club poem for the month.

The nominating committee submitted the names of the following for officers for the coming year. Mrs. Paul Lewis, president, Mrs. Elmer Mewes, vice-president, Mrs. Charles Mawhorter, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Dorothy Bacon, home demonstration agent was present and talked on Pictures for the Home. She said in part: "Pictures should express individuality of persons."

She gave twelve things to remember which may apply to choosing pictures for one's home. Some of these are: Dignity of Simplicity, Worth of Character, Influence, Joy of Originality, Pleasure of Working. The hanging of pictures was also discussed.

At the conclusion of the meeting all viewed the canned fruit which was brought by each member as a gift for a sick member of the community who was unable to can any this season.

Mrs. W. C. Mewes and daughter Miss Myrtle will be hostesses to the club in November.

Mrs. Burns and Mrs. Poindexter served refreshments.

Kansas Motorists' Car Turns Over

Mrs. Lois Reynolds, 1919 North Thirteenth street, Kansas City, Kansas, received painful injuries about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the Chevrolet convertible coupe driven by her husband Donald Reynolds, overturned just west of Muddy bridge on highway 50. Mrs Reynolds received a fracture of the upper part of the right arm near the shoulder, and bruises about her body

Mr and Mrs. Reynolds were enroute to Rolla, Mo., for a visit with friends and were headed east on the highway. Coming down the long hill a car appeared to be stopping on the highway, and another car was headed west on the highway. To avoid a 'pile up" of cars and causing possible injury to the occupants of the other cars, Mr. Reynolds today to the right shoulder of the highway, skidded down a steep enbankment and overturned.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were thrown clear of the car which possibly saved them from greater injury. Mr. Reynolds received slight bruises.

They were brought to the Bothwell hospital in the McLaughlin's ambulance where Dr. A. L. Walter treated them.

The automobile was badly smashed.

Five Killed In Wreck Saturday

Capture Two Reformatory Escapees

Highway Trooper And Sheriff Catch Youths Near Higbee

MACON, Mo., Oct. 11—(AP)—Two Algoa reformatory fugitives, who critically stabbed and wounded a man in their flight, were captured Friday near Higbee, Mo.

Trooper Paul Updegraff of the state highway patrol and Charles Hartig, Randolph county deputy sheriff found the pair walking along the Chicago and Alton right-of-way half a mile west of Higbee. The two, Edward Robins, 17, and Stanley Willits, 18 were brought to troop B headquarters here.

Officers said the two started to run when the officers approached, but soon stopped and surrendered without resistance.

Held By Officers

They were turned over to Randolph county officers tonight. Marion Lamb, prosecuting attorney, said he would await outcome of the condition of Ellis Halliburton, 30, Moberly, the stabbing victim, before filing charges.

Willits and Robins, members of the reformatory band, escaped last night while the organization was at Madison for a concert. Fleeing in a stolen car, they collided with a machine driven by Halliburton. An altercation followed in which Halliburton was stabbed.

Halliburton was reported in a critical condition at a Macon hospital tonight.

All-Night Search

The capture, following an all-night search by all officers of troop B of the highway patrol and northeast Missouri peace officers, came soon after a tip from two squirrel hunters. Their information was relayed by patrol radio to the searching officers. Twenty minutes after the call was sent out, Updegraff and Hartig had the pair in custody.

Willits and Robins were dressed in their reformatory uniforms of dark blue jumpers and gray trousers. One carried a six-inch railroad spike.

At troop headquarters they said they spent the night in an abandoned farm house. While in flight their only food was hickory nuts, they said.

More Money For Public Schools

This week, warrants are being drawn in the office of State Auditor Forrest Smith to pay each county the correct apportionment of the Foreign Insurance Fund, which goes to the schools of the state for the purchase of free textbooks. This apportionment is based upon the enumeration of school children in each county, and comes from a tax upon the premiums collected in Missouri by the insurance companies. This year there will be $1.61 per pupil for textbooks as compared with $1.26 last year.

The amount of this fund in 1941 is $1,501,524.87. This is $315,864.45 greater than the amount apportioned to the schools in 1940. On the other hand, the enumeration list this year shows the number of school children at the lowest point since 1934. In 1920, the list showed 905,911 school children in Missouri. There was a gradual increase in the number until 1934 when the peak was reached. In that year, 966,288 children were on the enumeration list. Since 1934, there has been a constant decrease and the list this year shows but 930,771 children of school age.

The enumeration list for Pettis county shows 7,568 school children, and the amount of money coming to our county for our schools is $12,208.74.

Marshall Resident Dies

MARSHALL, Mo., Oct. 15.—(AP)—John Shelby Wilson, 73, who came to Missouri in a covered wagon in 1877, died last night.

Phil A. Bennett

Our Congressman Says—

A batch of worry can easily be whipped up these days over dizzy goings on in the world. Sometimes when I sit down to pound out this little weekly report to you, my employers back home, I get to wondering whether or not I should be so frank and above board in telling you about the high powered razzle dazzle going on around this glorified county courthouse we call the national capital. Sometimes I wonder if possibly it wouldn't be better to throw in a sentimental one about the death of a dog or a tribute to some grand old man of this or that to help ease the public blood pressure. After all, I am a great deal more interested in my constituents and poor relations than in our foreign relations upon whom all attention is currently being centered to the sad neglect of many domestic affairs.

Right now my office is receiving many complaints from various R. E. A. cooperatives in the Sixth district by virtue of the fact that they are unable to get copper wire and other materials with which to finish lines for which allotments have been made, that have been contracted for, and for which many citizens have signed as would-be consumers. I have had this matter before proper authorities and am advised that the increasing demand for copper in materials to give to England and Russia under the lease-lend program necessarily curtails the amount of copper the OPM priorities board can allot to REA. This answer is not very satisfactory to me in view of the fact that certain public utilities have been given a better priority rating for the same materials and in view of the further fact that Uncle Sam is loudly requesting just now that farmers increase production of foodstuffs in interest of national defense. Nothing would be better help in speeding up such production than electricity. So, a few of us are still working on the matter in hope that a more satisfactory adjustment will eventually be made than the priorities bureaucrats are currently disposed to allow. An allotment of $1,542,000 was obtained last week for KAMO transmission lines serving Cedar Barton and Polk counties in our Sixth district.

Her fruit, first class and American, sells at the rate of 53c per dozen in Washington, D. C. On October 1, 1941, 1,334,700 dozen eggs arrived in New York from the Argentine. Six thousand dozen of the Argentine eggs were sold on the New York wholesale market at 26c per dozen compared with 32½c per dozen for domestically produced eggs of the same grade I can't blame New Yorkers for wanting to save money on food, but I do blame those who permit importation of competitive farm products to drive the American farmer out of his own market. This business of being a "good neighbor" has its limitations doesn't it? Adding insult to injury defenders for his "farm aid" referred on the floor of the house on October 6, 1941, to farmers who object as "chiselers" and "scabs." Oh, national unity and good neighborism what crimes are committed in thy name!

The cat got out of the bag on October 7 when John Carmody, head of the federal works agency, admitted before Senator Truman's committee investigating graft and waste in the defense program, that in order to keep from making the American Federation of Labor mad, his agency refused to accept a bid on a Wayne, Michigan, defense housing project which was $431,000 lower than other bids but on which CIO labor was to be used by the bonded contractor submitting the low bid. Poor old John L. Lewis just rode the wrong horse that's all But, maybe we had better save our sympathy, not for John Lewis but for John Taxpayer This little stunt increases the cost of each house over three thousand dollars, will require 12 more years of payments by a purchaser, or $10 per month additional rent per unit, and a few extra taxes for all of us Now I'll probably get some letters accusing me of being opposed to union labor, defense, the president, religion, home and mother

Which brings me to the story about the grand old man. This old man's name was John Quincy Adams, president of the United States When J. Q was living in the White House a beautiful little stream, Tiber creek, flowed its merry way down through the "mall" which connects the U. S. capitol, the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial in a panorama of landscaped loveliness known to all who have visited in Washington, D. C. This stream originated in a spring which still bubbles forth from the capitol lawn, but now into the sewers. Well, the story is that the White House had no bathtub in those days and J. Q. A had the habit of dunking his body in the Tiber, a la birthday suit when the heat of the day and cares of official business would permit. Now a certain charming lady was wont to pester the president for a job, even as officials are beset in this modern age. The president had consistently refused to employ said C L. However, one evening she appeared on the bank of the aforesaid Tiber while J. Q. A. was doing a solo in the raw under the willows She sat on his clothes. The scandalized president insisted that she leave before his reputation was ruined and his patience exhausted at her persistence. To make a long story short, she got the job and J. Q. A saved his reputation, all of which can be verified in the congressional library and in the autobiography of the president himself The moral being, I guess, that a president, and even a congressman perhaps, should keep his guard up or will be caught w. h. p d.

P. S. Pettis county visitors in Washington, D. C. this week were W. I. Weise, of Sedalia, and Jas. Ryan of Houstonia, Missouri.

Arrest Two Youths After Car Thefts

Found Tuesday Morning In Woods North Of Stover

VERSAILLES, October 15 — After a series of crimes in this vicinity including the theft of two cars, two youthful brothers, who identified themselves as William Clayton Marriott, 14, and Pete Marriott, 17, were arrested Tuesday by the sheriff of Morgan county, K. A. Goodman, and Deputy Willam Koehler, who had trailed them for 12 hours.

The two boys were found hiding in the sparsely populated woods between Florence and Stover to which they had fled after wrecking a stolen car belonging to Donald Drake of Fortuna. The younger brother suffered several broken ribs and lacerations about the head in the crash, and was taken to the Van Ravenswaay hospital in Boonville for treatment.

Sign Confession

In a signed confession, the youths told of a county-wide stealing spree which had Sheriff Goodman and others searching throughout Monday night for the two The trail began at Versailles, where the boys took a Plymouth coupe of Lloyd Buchanan, which was parked in front of the Kidwell Funeral parlor. Driving the automobile to near Fortuna, in Moniteau county they accidentally ran in a ditch.

Leaving the car they continued into Fortuna on foot, where they stole the Chevrolet coach of Donald Drake according to their confession Doubling on their trail they returned to Versailles, and started west out of the city on Highway 52. On the outskirts, they paused long enough to break into the filling sation of Milford Vogt, taking cigarettes and candy

Continuing west on the highway, the two youths drove through Stover and two miles west of the town lost control of the car. The vehicle left the road, struck a bank and bounded 43 feet, finally striking a telephone pole at the side of the road.

Stay In Barn

Frightened and worried about his younger brother's injuries, the older boy helped the other along until they reached the woods and the safety of a barn. They were found in the woods about 9 o'clock this morning by the sheriff and his deputy

Pete Marriott, the older brother, was placed in the Moniteau county jail at California pending a hearing.

The boys, who formerly lived in Morgan county, gave Kansas City as their home.

Quickly Halt Tire Shop Fire

Auto Crash Victim Dies

Ercell Manis Second Victim Of Wreck Sunday Morning

Ercell Elton Manis, 22, of rural route 2, Warrensburg, died at the Bothwell hospital at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the second victim of the headon car crash that occurred on highway 50, near Dresden, early Sunday morning. The other victim was Elvis D. Jay 19, of Sedalia, 1709 East Fifth street, who died almost instantly Manis was driver of a west bound car and Jay driver of an east bound car.

Manis suffered a fracture of the skull, severe lacerations on the forehead and left side of his face and head. He never regained consciousness.

With him at the time of his death were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Manis, and his sister, Mrs. Jesse Lankford, the latter of Lexington.

Manis was born in Warrensburg on January 7, 1919 and spent his entire life in the Warrensburg community. He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Walter Manis of the family home, his sister of Lexington, a nephew, Bobby Dale Ward and a niece, Beverly Lankford of Lexington.

He has been working at the Lamy Manufacturing Co., Sedalia since last March as a presser, and was employed there at the time of his death. He drove to and from his Warrensburg home to Sedalia daily.

The body was taken to the Phillips-Sweeney Funeral Home at Warrensburg.

Funeral services for Jay were held at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel this morning and interment was in the Grant City cemetery

Keep Same Social Security Cards

Young men and women who had been working during the summer vacation period and who have now returned to college were cautioned in a statement by Karl R. Hunzeker, manager of the Sedalia office of the Social Security Board, to keep the same Social Security account number cards issued to them when they began work and have the numbers ready for their employers whenever they return to employment, This also applies to boys and girls of grade and high schools who have been working during vacation periods, Mr. Hunzeker stated.

"Many a person, after securing a Social Security account number and working for a short time, either misplaces or loses his account card," Mr. Hunzeker stated, "and we are trying to impress upon each student the fact that he needs only one account number and should keep it throughout his working lifetime."

It was emphasized by Mr. Hunzeker that two different Social Security account numbers may mean smaller old-age and survivors insurance payments when the time comes to file a claim for benefits. In case anyone loses his Social Security account number card, a duplicate may be secured, Mr. Hunzeker said. "This chance to secure a duplicate number, however, is no reason for the holder of an account number to become careless and disregard the importance of safeguarding his original number.

Cullen Cain Is Met At Depot Here By Boyhood Friends

Cullen Cain, a noted writer now living in Coral Gables, Fla., who formerly lived in Sedalia and Warsaw, was thrilled when he stepped off the train in Sedalia Monday to be met by two old friends. His own account of the meeting follows:

"Every man has a dream at one time or another about coming back to the old home town and being met at the station by the mayor and certain leading citizens and a brass band.

"Happy dream, even if it hardly ever comes true.

"But a delegation met me at the Sedalia station Monday that beat mayor, band and citizen outfit all hollow. Yep. No public demonstration could have warmed my heart like the greeting I had at the old Missouri Pacific station yesterday noon.

Here To Address Club

"I had come here to talk to the Sorosis club ladies and there was something in the paper about it the day before. Dan Banks, the colored porter at the Third street barber shop, read it. Dan knew me in boyhood days in Warsaw. So he hunted up Miles Carpenter, another colored man who was also a Warsaw product, having spent part of his time cluttering up the Warsaw main street and the rest of it in the Warsaw jail on one petty charge and another.

"But Dan knew that old Miles went away back into my boyhood clear to the knee pants days. So when I alighted from the train there came to greet me Miles and Dan. They grabbed me and my suit case with loud exclamations of delight.

Friends From Boyville

"Two old timers from Boyville, the dearest spot of all in Memory Land. Their faces were black but their hearts were white. Say, no brass band could have given me the thrill those two Warsaw outcasts did. The mayor of Sedalia never carried me across a muddy street when I was a kid. No local citizen ever fought for me.

"That disreputable old Miles, and that wrinkled ol' Dan, you bet I was glad you greeted me yesterday and have not forgotten the chuckle-headed boy of a half century ago down on the old river. Listen! I can close mine eyes and see it slipping along in the sunlight of yesterdays; I can hear the water lapping the bank."

'Ed' Jenkins In Flying School

Capt. Edward L. Jenkins, now on duty with the 179th Field Artillery, Camp Blanding, Fla., has started 10 weeks course of instruction at the Air Corps Advanced Flying School, Brooks Field, Tex, pointing to a rating of aircraft observer, according to Lieut. Col. Stanton T. Smith, commandant. Capt. Jenkins is a member of a class of 58 ground officers selected for the specialized training.

Capt. Jenkins is the son of Mrs. C. A. Jenkins, Dean Apartments, this city. He graduated from Missouri University in 1934.

Confronting Capt. Jenkins is 202 hours of ground school instruction, 70 hours in the air as a member of a two-man observation team, the task of memorizing code signal so that he can send code at the rate of 15 words a minute, familiarize himself with forms and tactics of ground troops, and all phases of aerial photography that includes mosaic maps, pin-points and oblique photographs. He also must learn to operate the K-3B aerial camera and to note results of his photographic missions.

A pilot officer is assigned to him as the other member of the team to fly the training plane on the instruction flights.

Tragedy Follows St. Clair Family

ST. CLAIR, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A kerosene-ignited fire killed the parents of a 2-year-old girl last night and burned the child and a family friend who rescued her.

Clifford Kinney, 47, and his wife, Florence, 34, were dead. Their daughter, Naomi, and John Vaughn, 71, of Mehville, were burned and were taken to hospitals.

Coroner Ernest Ottman said Mrs. Kinney threw kerosene on a wood fire as the men and the child sat in the kitchen awaiting the evening meal Spurting flames spread rapidly. Mrs. Kinney died a few hours later at a St. James hospital. Her husband's body was found at the bottom of a cistern near the kitchen door. How it got there was unexplained.

At the time of the accident, Kinney was writing notes of appreciation to friends who had sent flowers to the funeral yesterday of his stepson, Eldon Phillips, 12, who was fatally injured by an automobile September 24.

Installing New Gas Pumps in K. C.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 14—(AP)—The city council is going to be sure that every gallon of gasoline has four full quarts.

Investigators tested pumps at 120 filling stations and found 108 measuring short — some as much as three quarts on a five-gallon purchase.

Now the pumps are to be sealed and inspected quarterly. If anyone—other than the inspector—breaks the seal the fine may run as high as $500.

Signing For Farm Defense Program Soon

Will Ask Farmers' Intentions On '42 AAA Plans, Too

Farmers in the near future will be asked to sign a Farm Defense Program plan pledging cooperation in the 1942 "Food for Freedom" Program. They may also signify their intention of complying with the 1942 AAA Farm program at the same time. The sign-up campaign will run from late October to early December according to B. C. Claycomb, chairman of the Pettis county USDA Defense Board and the County Agricultural Conservation committee. Both the pledge for the food campaign and the Triple-A program for 1942 is voluntary.

"Our sign-up is being held earlier this year to give farmers an opportunity to plan desired food production increases well in advance of the farming season," Claycomb said. This is especially important in planning increased production of dairy, poultry and hog products.

Although the Department of Agriculture is asking for more of certain foods under the "Food for Freedom" campaign, the Triple-A Farm program still calls for checks on crops of which there are larger reserves. It also provides for soil conservation measures so that farmers will not mine their soil in this food production effort.

Claycomb pointed out that conservation will be needed more than ever on farms where such crops as soybeans are increased next year. Soybeans can cause serious soil loss on rolling land and their use should be restricted to the less erosive soils. Or if grown on rolling land they should be followed by winter cover crops.

Farmers will be in full compliance with the 1942 Farm Program when they devote 20 per cent of their cropland to soil-conserving uses and plant within the special allotments on corn, wheat and cotton. At the same time, they have a very definite contribution to make to national defense in producing needed amounts of concentrated and highly nutritious foods.

Take Good Care Of Utensils

Proper care will prolong the useful life of all cooking utensils, and the shortage of metals for making new utensils makes it desirable for the homemaker to take good care of her present supply, urges Miss Louise Woodruff of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture.

A convenient shelf for cleaning supplies saves times and aids in regular care and cleaning. The shelf should hold a fine scouring powder—the kind that doesn't scratch. Spanish whiting and stone are both excellent, any may be purchased from the drug store or paint shops.

A metal sponge or fine steel wool is useful for cleaning stubborn spots. Steel wool varies from very fine (00) to very coarse, and it may or may not be specially treated to keep it from rusting. A mild neutral soap—the same kind used for washing fine fabrics—is also needed among cleaning supplies.

Aluminum may be scoured with steel wool. Aluminum utensils which have become discolored may be cleaned by boiling in them an acid like sour milk, rhubarb, tomatoes, or weak vinegar.

Tin and enamel utensils need more gentle care, and harsh scouring will injure both. From these utensils, food should be soaked loose rather than scraped with metal. Burned food can be loosened by heating a weak baking soda solution in the utensil for a few minutes then washing with soap and water. A very stubborn stain should be rubbed gently with a fine powder that is free from grit. An enamel or tin surface that has been scratched is very hard to keep clean.

Cast iron utensils may be scoured when necessary and dried completely over a warm stove or in a warm oven after each use. If such utensils are to be stored several weeks they should be rubbed with tallow or oil to prevent rusting.

Dig Gladioli When Tops Turn

Gladioli should be dug when the tops turn, the tops left on until the corms have dried a day or so in the sun, then cut off, and the corms placed in paper bags and stored in a cool, dry place.

As soon as the frost kills the dahlia tops, they should be cut off and the clump of tubers lifted. After drying, the tubers should be stored, upside down, in boxes in a temperature of about 55 degrees. Excelsior or shavings should be used to cover the bulbs.

The canes of climbing roses may be coiled, weighted down with small branches and then covered with leaves. Other climbers should be attached firmly to supports to be safe from winter winds.

Tender roses should be banked with earth at the base so as to shed water. This will aid in preventing damages from temperture changes. After this they should be staked and then wrapped in straw to protect them against freezing weather.

A mulch of dead leaves around planting will conserve the moisture. These should be kept well watered—so as to force new root growth to carry them through the winter.

Boxwoods and other tender evergreens should be covered with burlap supported on frames so as not to come in actual contact with the plant. Sun and strong winds are the dangers to these plants that need to be excluded.

Hillview Club Sees Remodeling Examples

Mrs. Floyd Thomason was hostess to the members of the Hillview Home Extension club last Friday, and at noon a covered dish luncheon to which all contributed, was served.

Miss Margaret Malee gave an interesting demonstration on how to remodel clothing.

A Hallowe'en party for the 4-H club members will be held Saturday night, November 1, at the home of Mrs. Sid Johnson and Mrs. Marshall Hall.

The next meeting will be November 14 at the home of Mrs. Sid Johnson when husbands of members will be invited to lunch.

William H. Neece Made A Corporal

William H. Neece, son of Mrs. Trea Neece, route 6, has been promoted to the rank of Corporal in charge of an 81 mm squad of the famed 60th Infantry "Go-Devils." The mortar platton of which he has been a member recently won first place in regimental mortar tests. Since the 60th, as part of the Ninth Infantry Division, is now participating in First Army maneuvers "somewhere in South Carolina," Corporal Neece is looking forward to plenty of action during the next two months.

During the first 11 months of 1940. 3,081,016 new passenger cars were registered in the United States as compared with 2,406,823 registered for the same period of 1939.

Club Meets At Harmony School

The Harmony Stitch and Chatter club had an all day meeting at the Harmony school building recently, at which time guests were the women from the Brick Homemaker club.

At noon a dinner was served to the following guests, Mrs. Jesse Parsons, Mrs. F. Gertz, Mrs. Harry Broderson, Mrs. Ira Page, Mrs. Cora Ziegel, Mrs. Vincil Fry and children, Mrs. Arthur Sanders, Mrs. Roy Armstrong, Mrs. Fred Holman, Mrs. Smith and baby, Mrs. Sam Homan, Mrs. E. H. Tavenner, Mrs. Betty Potter, Mrs. John Reed, Mrs. Robert Steele, Miss Mary Elizabeth Parsons, Miss Ada Sanders, Miss Dorothy Gertz, Mrs. C. H. Brunkhorst, Miss Esther Hays, fifteen members and several young girls and some small children.

In the afternoon the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Neal Speaker, by singing, "America," followed by a scripture reading by Mrs. Mae Carver.

The program was on Hallowe'en and roll call was answered by telling of a time when you were frightened.

After the program and short business meeting a game, "Corn and Bean Harvest," was played.

The next meeting will be Thursday, November 20 with Mrs. F. A. Mertgen.

Boy Under Bond Reported Missing

Sedalia police notified the Missouri State Highway Patrol radio station at Lees Summitt Wednesday night of the absence of Richard "Dinkey" Hawley, 15, who is under $1,000 bond for the theft of an automobile from Warsaw. Hawley's parents reported to police that the boy had been missing from home since October 8, and they offered a reward of $25 to anyone returning him to Sedalia.

The youth is five feet, five inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, has brown hair and a fair complexion. He has a scar under his right eye and a blue spot under his left eye.

When last seen, he was wearing a brown shirt, green pants, a green and tan sweater and brown oxfords.

Elvis Jay Killed In Car Wreck

Head-On Crash Near Dresden About 5 o'clock Sunday Morning

Elvis Dewey Jay, 19, of 1708 East Fifth street is dead and Ercell Elton Manis, 22, of RFD, Warrensburg, died Tuesday afternoon at the Bothwell hospital, the result of a head-on crash of their automobiles one mile west of Dresden about 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Two other youths received slight bruises and lacerations.

Boll was riding with Jay and received only bruises about his leg and the top of his head. When the crash occurred he was thrown below the dash and protected from flying glass.

Virgil Murphy, 27, of 3029 Charlotte avenue, Kansas City, who was riding with Manis, received possible fracture of right ribs a slight laceration behind the right ear, and bruises about his body. Murphy was slumped in the seat, with his head on the seat, when the cars crashed and was protected from flying glass and parts of the automobiles.

Coming To Sedalia

Jay was driving a 1937 Dodge sedan and was headed east. Manis was driving a 1929 Model A Ford coupe, headed west. Both cars, from the appearance of the automobiles were "crowding" the center of the highway. This was also indicated by marks on the highway, about the white center line.

Boll, in telling of the accident, stated he had changed places with Jay about a mile and a half up the road. He said that he became tired and Jay said he would take over the driving. "I was seated in the car, half down in the seat when I suddenly saw a car approaching without lights and I yelled to Jay. He tried, it appeared to me, to cut to the right, but too late to avoid the crash. Both cars I believe, were "riding the line" when it happened," Boll said.

Thought Lights Were Burning

Murphy said they had stopped at a filling station at Gasoline Alley and got gas and checked their oil." When we were at the station I am sure the lights were all right on the car, but after we left the station I went to sleep. I don't know what happened, the only thing I knew, was, there was a crash and I rolled out of the car onto the highway. My side was hurting badly for a few seconds.

Elvis Dewey Jay

"As soon as I got my senses, the other fellow and myself started looking for help. A car arrived at the scene about five or ten minutes later and the driver took me to town and notified the police, asking them to call the ambulance. I went back to the wreck immediately and remained there until after Sergeant Paul E. Corl, of the highway patrol, had arrived and checked things over. Manis and I had been in Sedalia, had dates, and after leaving the girls, started back home.

Traveling 45 Miles Per Hour

"I judge we were going about forty-five miles an hour when the accident happened," Murphy concluded.

Virgil Hutsler, Kansas City, was the driver of the car which arrived on the scene first. It was he who called the police and ambulance. Hutsler said he didn't believe he could do anything and thought it best to hurry into town and get assistance, taking Murphy with him.

Boll remained at the scene and stopped the cars that passed. The second car was a coupe with S. T. McKibben, and Ida Jones, Negroes, of Kansas City who stopped and helped Boll.

A few minutes later Logan Roberts, who was going to the country hunting, stopped and helped to pull the Ford car off the road so other cars could pass on. He stayed at the wreck until the ambulance arrived.

Victims To Hospital

Robert H. Reed driver of the McLaughlin ambulance took Manis to the Bothwell hospital, after making an examination to ascertain whether Jay was alive. He then returned to the wreck with Dr. W. T. Bishop, coroner, who made an investigation.

Dr. Bishop stated an inquest was not necessary, as it was evident Jay had died from injuries received in the wreck and there was no evidence of any criminal liability.

Cars In Fatal Crash Sunday Morning

Top: Elvis Jay, 19, 1708 East Fifth street, met death in the above shown Dodge sedan, which he was driving early Sunday morning on Highway 50, one mile west of Dresden. Jay was fatally injured and died in the car a few minutes after the accident.

Bottom: The model A Ford coupe, driven by Ercell E. Manis, 22, of R. F. D. 2, Warrensburg, which collided with the Dodge sedan.

Two passengers in the car received slight bruises and lacerations. In the Dodge with Jay was Dean Boll, 111 West Sixth street, and riding with Manis was Virgil Murphy of Kansas City.

Conservation Contest Planned

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Competition for the third annual Asa B. Wallace awards for the best essays on conservation written by Missouri children has been announced by the education section of the State Conservation Commission. Only boys and girls taking part in the Missouri Nature Knights program are eligible to compete.

Ten dollars will be awarded for the best essay from each of the State's four conservation districts. An additional $10, making a total of $20, will go to the writer of the best essay chosen from the four district winners.

The essays must be written on this subject: "What Conservation Means to Me." Teachers will submit the best essay from their school to the county superintendent of schools, who in turn will select the one best essay from the county.

County winners must be submitted to the Conservation Commission not later than Feb. 1, 1942. Announcement of the winners will be made in March during Wildlife Conservation Week.

Prizes in the contest are taken from a fund established for the purpose by Asa B. Wallace, a St. Louis business executive and conservationist.

Woman Cashier Robbed Of $5,430

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Isma Shepherd, 50, cashier for a meat company, was thrown to the sidewalk in front of the Merchants Bank in the downtown district today and robbed of a paper wrapped package containing $5,430 in checks and cash.

All but $490.01 of the money was in checks, but all were endorsed. Mrs. Shepherd screamed and fought to protect her valuable parcel but finally lost it to her assailant whom she described as a slightly built man about 22 years old. He jumped into a waiting car and was driven away by a companion. The car bore no license plates, Mrs. Shepherd said.

Higginsville Youth Shot

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo., Oct. 14—(AP)—Corp. Frederick A. Haeder, 26, of Higginsville, was unconscious and in a critical condition with a gunshot wound in the head at post hospital today.

He was found yesterday in his quarters, sitting in bed slumped back against the wall. A bullet from a .45 caliber automatic, only shell in the gun, had pierced his right temple and left forehead.

Post surgeons performed an emergency operation last night.

Haeder entered the army as a selectee last February and reenlisted in the regular army in April for a 3-year period. He was named corporal July 12 and had been acting supply sergeant for Company G, First Infantry, Sixth Division, for the past month.

Post officials said his record was "exemplary" and expressed opinion the shooting may have been an accident.

Fall Fatal To S. B. Bassett

Dies Of Injuries Monday Evening In Boonville Hospital

Samuel Barnum Bassett, 73 farmer who resided near Postal, and a retired Cooper county school teacher, died at 6 o'clock Monday evening in the Alex Van Ravenswaay hospital in Boonville of injuries suffered Saturday afternoon when he fell from a scaffold at his arm house.

Mr. Bassett was on the scaffold to inspect a new roof which had just been completed by workmen, and fell to the ground striking a box of tools. He received a skull fracture, broken collarbone, and fractured ribs in the fall.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. W. R. Williams, Riverside, Ill., who went to Boonville to be at his bedside. Also surviving are a brother, W. H. Bassett, 1314 South Kentucky avenue, Sedalia and another brother, John Bassett, of the state of California. Mr. Bassett's wife, Mrs. Maude Bassett, died several years ago.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Stegner and Koenig Funeral Home in Boonville, with the Rev. W. A. Tetley, pastor of the Nelson Memorial church, officiating. Interment will be in the Walnut Grove cemetery in Boonville.

Mr. Bassett was having remodeling done at his farm preparatory to going to Old Mexico to spend the winter months. He was born in Bunceton, and had lived most of his life in Cooper county, later residing on the farm near Postal.

Bomber Crashes; Seven Killed

MARCH FIELD, Calif., Oct. 13.—(AP)—An army B-23 bomber, passing abruptly from desert sunshine into fog and rain, crashed on a mountain pass yesterday. Apparently seven men were killed.

Darkness descended so soon after the accident that the bodies, strewn among wreckage over a distance of 300 yards, could not be assembled and identified. Five bodies were discernible, however, and there was no reason to believe two other men believed on board had escaped.

Tentatively identified among the dead were three lieutenants—J. E. Overstreet, 4th interceptor command, and J. S. Park, 4th air force, both of Riverside, and J. W. Templeton, 32nd air base group, of Wichita, Kas.

The air base at Albuquerque said these enlisted men also were aboard when the plane left there: Staff Sgts. B. T. Bell, R. J. Thomas and R. J. Farlow, and Corp. J. E. Smith.

Sedalia Boy Receives Honors

BOONVILLE, Mo. — Robert A. Hausam, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hausam, RFD 1, Sedalia, was honored at Kemper Military school this year by being given Standard of Honor.

The Standard of Honor, fundamental law of the Kemper Cadet Corps, is signed by all eligible old boys in an impressive candlelight ceremony held every year in the Johnston Field House.

Missouri-Pacific Brakeman Hurt

Catching his foot on the track as he stepped off a moving Missouri Pacific freight train near Otterville about 5 o'clock Monday evening, A. C. Mayfield, 24, 625 South Lafayette avenue, suffered an injury below his right knee cap and lacerations on the forehead.

Mayfield, a brakeman on the railroad, had stepped off the train to throw a switch when his foot caught, throwing him forward on his face. He was brought to the Bothwell hospital in a McLaughlin ambulance.

Weekly incomes of more than half the car owners in the United States are less than $30 in normal times. Almost three-quarters of all the car owners have incomes of less than $40 a week.

Sen. Bankhead Opposes Morgenthau

Charges He's Agriculture Public Enemy Number 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—(AP)—Dubbing treasury secretary Morgenthau agriculture's "public enemy No. 1," Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) said today that farm state congressmen would oppose any attempt to clamp rigid price ceilings on agriculture.

Bankhead, who has sponsored most of the New Deal farm laws and appropriations in recent years, asserted that he saw no possibility of an inflationary prices for major farm crops.

He hit out at the recent series of Morgenthau statements which contended that rising farm prices have accelerated the danger of inflation and which urged that government loan stocks of agricultural products be placed on the market to counteract the climbing prices.

Challenges Position

Bankhead challenged the Morgenthau position as "absurb."

"We have big surplus supplies of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and most other major farm projects," he said in an interview. "As long as this exists there can be no inflation in farm prices. To get an inflated price, you must have a scarcity with several buyers bidding for an article. No thinking person is afraid of such a situation in cotton, wheat or other major crops."

Bankhead, chairman Smith (D-SC) of the Senate agriculture committee, and several other Senators who have led congressional battles on farm bills in the past have accused Morgenthau of forcing down market prices of cotton and other major crops by recent public utterances.

No Farm Authority

"Anyone would think he was secretary of agriculture instead of the treasury," Bankhead said. "He seems to spend all his time trying to advise on farm matters. I like Mr. Morgenthau and respect him but he's no farm authority. He has become public enemy No. 1 of the farmer, especially the cotton farmer."

When the administration's price-fixing bill reaches the Senate Bankhead said he would demand that any price ceilings on farm products "be tied directly to the price index on wages and labor and that both of these be flexible and geared to the cost of living."

Senator Thomas (D-Okla) said he would press for approval of his bill to revise upward the present system of determining parity prices on agricultural commodities. A parity price is one that gives an article the same relative purchasing power it had in the base period 1909-14.

Any increase in parity levels for major farm products would mean millions and possibly billions of extra dollars for farmers in the period of predicted prosperity now ahead. Mandatory government loans at 85 per cent of parity levels, ordered by congress this year as a floor under farm prices, would be lifted automatically thus supporting market prices.

Young Peoples Group Elects

New officers of the Young Methodist People of Pettis county were installed Monday night at a meeting of the group at the Methodist church in Smithton. Miss May Sue Campbell, Sedalia, is the president of the county association.

Other officers are Dora Dale Siron, Dresden, vice president. Mary Ruth Dotson, Sedalia, secretary; Ruby Scott, LaMonte, treasurer; Dorothy Burford, Sedalia, recreational director; Ruth Hoerman, Smithton, pianist; Paul Jenkins, Sedalia, publicity director.

A program held during the meeting included a piano duet by Louise and Mida Grinstead, of Longwood, and a book review, "Invitation to Live", by Anna Mae Gerster. Rev. C. I. Phipps installed the new officers.

The next meeting of the group will be held at First Methodist church of Sedalia in November.

Conditions Of Minister And Wife Improved

Rev. and Mrs. Alonzo Patison, of Houstonia, who were injured in an automobile wreck on highway 40, while returning to their home from Kansas City last Wednesday night were both better yesterday.

They are in the Trinity Lutheran hospital, Kansas City, where until Sunday Mrs. Patison's condition was critical.

Will McClure Still In Serious Condition

Will McClure, St. Louis commission man, who was injured in an automobile wreck, west of Boonville Saturday, while enroute from St. Louis to Hughesville, remains in a serious condition in the Boonville hospital, and is not permitted to have visitors. His wife, who was summoned to Boonville after the accident, will remain with him.

Former Convict Admits Murder Of Golf Star

Tells Officers Of Struggle In Apartment

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 13—(AP) — Kentucky's most puzzling slaying that of golf star Marion Miley and her mother, appeared solved today with the confession of Tom C. Penney that he participated in the holdup-shooting in the Miley's Lexington, Ky., apartment September 28.

The 32-year-old ex-convict from Lexington said in a signed statement that he and Robert H. Anderson, Louisville night club operator, shot the women in a scuffle when they resisted the robbery attempt.

Penney's statement was given Assistant District Attorney Hendricks Brown yesterday in the presence of Sheriff Ernest Thompson and Chief of Police A. B. Price of Lexington.

Anderson Denies Complicity

It led to immediate arrest of Anderson in Louisville on a murder charge. He denied complicity.

A Lexington newspaper carrier, Hugh Cramer, gave police a description and license number of a sedan he saw the night of the slaying. Sheriff Thompson said Cramer's tip played an important part in the case.

Detectives arrested Penney Thursday night on a hunch, found the sedan he was driving was one reported stolen from Anderson in Louisville and reported the arrest to Kentucky officials.

Statements made by Tommy Lunsford, a friend of Penney's, and Bud Tomlinson, both 28 and from Lexington, proved another prime factor in breaking the case.

Refused To Aid

They said Penney had approached them and suggested they participate in the robbery a week before the slaying. Their statements said they refused.

Thompson said a .32 caliber exploded shell found in the sedan the same caliber as the bullets which killed the famous 27-year-old golf star and Mrs. Miley.

When confronted with all this information, Penney admitted the shootings and related this story, Thompson told reporters.

Penney and Anderson entered the swank Country Club apartment the night of September 28, turned off all lights, found a closed door on the second floor and heard someone inside snoring. They returned to their car and obtained guns.

Return To Apartment

"We went back to the club house," Penney said in his statement, "and went to the kitchen where Anderson picked up something, and then we went back upstairs.

"When we got back up the stairs Anderson used something to knock the panel out of the door. Anderson reached inside then and opened the door and I went into the room with him.

"There was a bunch of screaming and scuffling before I got in and as soon as I got in the room something hit me on the chin. I got knocked down and when I got up and started through the hall someone grabbed me by the neck. I hit the person with the gun in my hand and it went off. Then the shooting started. I don't know how many times I shot or how many times Anderson shot."

After the shooting, Penney said, he and Anderson went into a bedroom and saw a woman, apparently Mrs. Miley, sitting on the side of the bed and asked her about the money. She told them it was in a drawer. They found a paper sack and a cloth sack containing $130.

Took Money and Fled

They took the money and fled.

The guns were tied in a cloth bag and hurled into the Ohio river near Shelbyville, Penney related. He said Anderson drove him home and two days after the slaying told him, Penny, to take the car because "it was hot."

Two men and a woman picked up by Penney on his journey from Kentucky to Florida and thence to Texas, were exonerated of any part in the Miley case. Officers said the woman had been told some of the particulars of the robbery-slaying and "was talking her head off."

The Kentucky officials said they would remain here a day or so before returning with Penney.

Firemen Pull Cat Out Of Sewer

Tom, a little Maltese cat, owned by Darwin Scott, of 1320 South Ohio avenue, owes his life to the members of the Sedalia fire department.

About 11 o'clock Sunday night it was learned that Tom, apparently chasing a rat, had fallen into a sewer. The fire department was appealed to, and the firemen dug down eight feet to the sewer, cut a hole in the pipe, washed the cat back to the location where it had fallen in, and pulled it out by the tail.

"It didn't look much like a cat when it came out," said Fire Chief John Lueck, "but it was alive and came out not much worse for the experience."

Americans Find Iceland Land Of Grim And Savage Aspects

BY DREW MIDDLETON

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — (Correspondence of The Special News Service) — This island of grim, savage landscapes, now garrisoned by American, British and Norwegian forces, is as unfamiliar to the average American or Briton as Zanzibar.

Outside the city of Reykjavik, the boy from Birmingham, Ala., or Birmingham, England, finds himself in a patriarchal countryside redolent of another age.

Iceland, which is larger than Ireland, contains the great volcano Hekla; the largest glacier in Europe, the Vatno Jokull; innumerable geysers and hot springs, furious rivers and waterfalls. Its inland plains are strewn with withered moss and volcanic boulders.

Great hills of lava, like knuckles of some gigantic hand, lie athwart the landscape.

30,000 In Capital

On this largest of a chain of islands which stretch like sentry groups across the cold front of the Atlantic battlewaters from Scotland to Greenland, live 120,000 people, of whom 30,000 dwell in the capital and largest city, Reykjavik.

The only other town approaching the capital in size is Akureyri on the northern coast. In winter its 10,000 inhabitants are cut off from Reykjavik except by sea.

Icelanders are of old Norse stock. The language they speak today is almost identical with that of the Sagas. Students say it is old West Norse, the tongue spoken by Lief Ericssen and his Vikings when they crossed the Atlantic to America. It is an inconvenient tongue, just as it would be for modern Britons to speak Chaucer's English, but Icelanders cling to it with a peculiar fervor.

There is authentic culture here that shames earnest seekers-after-light at afternoon discussion groups in England and America. Farmers, fishermen and hotel waiters as well as lawyers read ancient Icelandic sagas, Greek and Roman classics and the best modern literature.

A tremendous amount of reading is done in the long winter months, and farmers departing for the back country after marketing invariably carry along cases of new books.

A newspaper editor has estimated that 52 percent of Icelanders speak, read and write another language beside their own. Danish, Norwegian and Swedish are the favorites, but thousands in Reykjavik use English as their second tongue. Many bookshops in the capital are full of English and American books printed both in English and Icelandic. Every literate Icelander appears to be an amateur translater.

This literacy apparently is due to universal free education. Formerly most Icelanders who could afford it went to universities in Denmark and Germany. The new university in Reykjavik now provides free higher education for all. Its students work on fishing trawlers and farms in the summer, return to the capital for a long winter of study.

Farming and fishing are the chief industries. Herring are caught off the northern coast, and off the west coast are some of the best cod fishing grounds in Europe. The few large fortunes in Iceland are founded on these humble fish.

Dried Fish Sold

In normal times dried fish are sold mostly to Spain and Italy, Britain buys some now, and Iceland is finding new markets in Latin America and Portugal.

Icelandic ponies, small and active, were the only means of transportation until 1881 when the first Icelandic road was built. Even today roads are few and poor. Herculean labors by Americans and Britons to improve them are only a stop-gap, for a few months' punishment by heavy military vehicles puts them back into primitive state.

There are no railways, a fact which the British overlooked when they sent a railroad transport officer with the original occupying force in May of 1940. The only regular means of transit is a bus line, generally undependable. Under these conditions, taxis flourish and their owners grow sleek.

Natives Are Tall

The average Icelander is tall, blond and well-developed. The girls are remarkably pretty.

There still are traces of hostility to the British and American troops in Reykjavik, but in the country districts the people are very friendly.

Iceland's outstanding political characteristic is love of independence. The nation's parliament, the Althing, has been functioning since the year 930. Ties with Denmark were cultural and economic rather than political. Although the king of Denmark also was king of Iceland, his Icelandic subjects refused to speak Danish and clung to their own Archaic tongue.

The conservative party now is in power by a slim margin over the liberals. Like Congress in the early days of the United States, the parliament is made up of farmers, fishermen and small shopkeepers. The Communist party is more noisy than numerous. In the last general election before the war, the Nazi party polled 399 votes out of a possible 52,000.

German influence, once fairly strong, is dwindling. The Germans flattered the Icelanders' love of their own culture by sending scientific expeditions and organizing skiing and hiking clubs.

Some of the older residents speak affectionately of student days in Germany, but the younger folk look more to London and New York and Hollywood for inspiration in dress manners and, in fact, for the whole business of living.

Two beliefs generally shared by the rest of the world infuriate Icelanders. One is that polar bears live here. The only one is in the zoo. The other is that there is a fair sprinkling of Eskimos. There aren't any.

Scientist Lists Three Ways To Improve Intelligence

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 13—(AP)—New mileposts in learning, three conditions by which adult, youth or child can improve his inborn intelligence, were described to the National Academy of Sciences here today.

First is to avoid three pitfalls of ill health, namely malnutrition, hormone disturbances and germ infections. These can retard intelligence in children and completely stop its growth in adults.

Second is to avoid rigidity, the mental state in which a person doesn't see anything new, even right under his nose, avoid retrospection and avoid the mechanisms of escape, a favorite adult trick for forgetting disappointments.

Take Mental Exercise

Third is to take mental exercise, meaning to abstract new learning. This is as necessary to adults as to youth.

The report was made by Dr. George D. Stoddard, director of the Iowa Child Welfare Research station, University of Iowa. He said there is time in all lives when intelligence can no longer be increased, but that the shape of this curve is unknown, and there are signs it runs upward in some people to the seventies and maybe beyond.

For youth the long-held idea that intelligence is fixed by heredity, is completely shattered.

Lineage Not So Important

"Even this distinguished group of academicians," Dr. Stoddard said, "desirous of getting a valid estimate of the quality of its sons and daughters, may well lay aside proud books of lineage or parental achievement in favor of tests of mental aptitude, in conjunction with marks obtained in standard subject matter from grade school to graduate college."

In Iowa, year after year, illegitimate children from lowest social levels, placed early in good adoptive homes, are reaching school age with an intelligence well above the average in America, according to Dr. Stoddard.

Youth Shows Ability

Youth has shown ability to raise its I. Q. the intelligence level, by 50 points. This is a huge gain, he stated, considering the fact that an I. Q of 70 is near moron levels; 100 is brightness and 170 genius.

Adults fail, he said, because of proneness to rigidity, fixed ideas, lack of interest in new subjects, lack of effort, and health.

He cited evidence of many exceptions to prove that I. Q.'s can go on rising. These were persons whose chief accomplishments had come at all ages beyond the thirties.
